SCHOOL AFFAIRS UP TO-NIGHT

IMPORTANT BUSINESS
TO COME BEFORE BOARD

Believed That Motion for Change in Principals Will Be Dropped.

This evening's meeting of the board of school trustees promises to be of a somewhat spirited character in view of the special business of a constitutional amendment which will come up for discussion. It will be recalled that the matter of amending the regulations respecting the administration of boys' and girls' classes at the high school, placing them under the charge of one principal, was postponed owing to the absence of trustee Steneland and trustee Riddell. These gentlemen have now arrived home, and will be present at to-night's meeting.

Another matter which will come up for discussion, which was held in abeyance for the same reason, is the question of the manner in which the contract for painting of the North Ward school was carried out by the contractor, E. A. Lewis. It was charged that the specifications were not being followed, and trustee McNeill brought the matter to the attention of the board. No decision was reached owing to the absence of trustee Steneland, who, it appears, had sold the supplies which were being used by Mr. Lewis, and the former is expected this evening to make his position clear in regard to the matter.

Chief interest, however, centres over the probable decision of the board in regard to the motion of trustee Christie providing for the change in the administration of the affairs of the Central school. From enquiries which the Times made this morning, it seems certain that as a result of to-night's meeting the proposal to appoint a single principal, who would have control of the boys' and girls' departments, will be abandoned. Not only is there apparently sufficient opposition amongst the members of the board themselves to suggest that the motion might be lost if it is pressed, but it is learned that under the act setting forth the powers and duties of the city superintendent, the latter shall be the sole authority in connection with the proper and efficient administration of the school system under his charge. The act is so plain on this point that even were the city superintendent otherwise inclined he could hardly in the present instance but refuse to give his sanction to so drastic a change as is proposed.

PRAIRIE FARMERS VERY PROSPEROUS

M. B. Jackson Says Many Prairie
Folk Are Coming to Victoria.

M. B. Jackson, of this city, has just arrived from Manitoba where he has been looking after the crops on his farms at Brandon. He went as far east as Ontario and brings back glowing reports of the conditions on the prairies this year. At his own farms he says he has averaged 26 bushels to the acre and at the present price this is very satisfactory. In Saskatchewan the crops have been even better than in Manitoba and the result is that the farmers are all prosperous.

Mr. Jackson says that Victoria is spoken of as a good deal in the districts he has visited, and he is sure that large numbers of people will come here this year. If this good crop is followed by another next season ten thousand people will come to Victoria to make their home.

"After visiting the other cities along the line Mr. Jackson is much impressed with the prospects of Victoria as a field for investment as well as of a delightful residential city. He is extremely anxious that the hinterland of the city should be developed, and then he says that nothing in the world can keep the city back. No matter what point is made the terminal port or what new cities are built, Victoria is bound to be the hub of them all."

TWO MEN ALMOST SCALDED TO DEATH

Engineer and Fireman Injured by Boiler Explosion in Logging Camp.

(Times Leased Wire.)
Bellingham, Wash., Oct. 14.—George Beckwith, engineer, and John Larson, fireman at the Lake Whatcom Logging camp, near here, are in the hospital to-day suffering from perhaps fatal injuries received yesterday when the donkey engine they were running blew up. The burning boiler showered both men with scalding water and they were hurled several yards. Beckwith sustained internal injuries, besides severe burns, and Larson had both legs broken and lost nearly half the skin on his body by scalds.

The injured men were brought to Bellingham on a special train and to-day it is doubtful whether their lives

MARPOLE MAKES FLYING VISIT

WAS HERE YESTERDAY
FOR A SHORT TIME

Confirms News of Awarding of Contract for Completion of Alberni Line.

R. Marpole, general executive agent of the C. P. R., spent yesterday afternoon in the city returning in the evening to Vancouver. He was accompanied to the Terminal City by E. B. Kurtz, president of the American Securities Company, who had arrived here by the noon steamer from Seattle. The two conferred respecting the location of the line of railway which is to be built from Cowichan Bay to tidewater, the desire being to place the route as to serve the greatest number of people interested in the timber industry.

Seen by a Times representative at the Empress hotel, Mr. Kurtz said he was just cleaning up the final details of the big project which his company has initiated on Vancouver Island in conjunction with the C. P. R., preparatory to returning to New York, which point he left to come west in July last. He was immensely gratified with the happy outcome of the negotiations with the railway company and with the disposal of the matter which he would confer with Mr. Marpole about at Vancouver, he would regard the enterprise as fairly launched. He assured the public that it was the intention of the company to proceed with the carrying out of its plans for the development of the timber resources of the island with all possible dispatch, and he pointed to the fact that both the railway company and his own company have survivors in the field as proof that this is no idle talk.

Mr. Marpole confirmed the announcement made from Vancouver which appeared in last evening's Times to the effect that the contract for the construction of the uncompleted portion of the branch line to Alberni had been signed with James, McDonald & Timothy, of Calgary. Mr. James would, he said, commence construction immediately, and already preparations have been made for going ahead with the work with all speed.

By the end of the present week track will have been laid as far as Nanose Bay, and shortly metal will be down as far as Cameron Lake, when the matter of getting in contractors' supplies will be simplified. At present the route of the railway has been graded as far as French Creek. The section which the Calgary firm will construct is about 27 miles in length, and there is a great quantity of what is known as "heavy work" on it, several big rock cuts being necessary.

CHARGES AS TO PAINTING

TRUSTEE STENELAND
MAKES HIS DENIAL

Speaks Before School Board
Committee on Paint Contract.

School Trustee Steneland this morning before the special committee of the board to meet A. E. Lewis, contractor for the painting of the North Ward school, denied the allegation made against him that he had told the contractor one coat of paint would be sufficient where the specifications called for two.

From a short denial he proceeded to elaborate on a statement regarding the matter charged against him, when trustee McNeill objected to his being heard at that stage.

Chairman George Jay also advised Trustee Steneland to defer his remarks until the school board meeting to-night.

Trustee Steneland, however, said he was 3,000 miles away when the matter was first given publicity, and he sought an opportunity ever since his return to make a statement, and had taken this first opportunity to do so. He thought the committee should hear him.

Mr. Jay said the committee, consisting of himself and trustees Riddell, McNeill and Mrs. Jenkins, had been appointed to meet the contractor who, it is alleged, has not carried out his contract in regard to the painting of the North Ward school. He personally had no objection to Trustee Steneland being present.

Mr. Lewis—I want Mr. Steneland to be present.
Trustee Steneland—As soon as I returned and heard of the matter I telephoned Mr. Jay to get an opportunity to make my statement and I want to be heard.

Mr. Lewis—I don't see any reason for newspaper publicity in the matter.
He was supported by trustee McNeill, and at the request of the chairman the Times representative retired. The members of the committee were all present with the exception of Mrs.

REBELS CAPTURE SEVERAL TOWNS

FIERCE FIGHTING IN NICARAGUA

Revolutionists Who Support
Estrada Are Marching Inland.

(Times Leased Wire.)
Bluefield, Nicaragua, Oct. 14.—(By Wireless via Colon.)—A great revolution against the administration of President Zelaya is to-day sweeping the entire country.

The people generally have accepted the proclamation naming Estrada, the provisional president of the republic, with gratification and amid joyful demonstrations.

Rivas and Comito to-day are in the hands of the rebels who are marching inland. Fierce fighting is reported to have occurred at Greytown, where Col. Ugarte is said to have defeated the garrison loyal to President Zelaya after a brief skirmish. Several are reported to have been killed on each side.

The rebels are headed towards Castillo, a fortified city, where their first opposition is expected. In their attack on Castillo the rebels will be led by Estrada, the provisional president, and Col. Ugarte.

The revolutionists are expected to make their attack on Castillo late to-day.

JAPANESE INFLUENCE AT WASHINGTON

Alleged to Be Responsible for Resignation of Minister to China.

(Times Leased Wire.)
Washington, Oct. 14.—The extent of pressure which Japan is said to wield at Washington in securing a United States minister to China who accords with her policies is a subject of comment to-day in official and unofficial circles here.

In some quarters it is hinted openly that the enforced resignation of Crane was brought about at the instance of Japan and speculation is current regarding how far Japan can go in dictating the selection of a minister to China.

Secretary of State Knox has announced that Crane's public statements were indiscreet, and that for them he was called upon to resign. Diplomats here point out that ordinary diplomatic custom always prescribes for burial of the real reasons of any action by a state department official, and that if this was the real reason it would not have been made public so freely.

Accepts Resignation.
Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—In a telegram received at the White House to-day, President Taft formally accepted the resignation of Charles R. Crane as minister to China.

TAFT IN ARIZONA.

President Spending Day in the Grand Canyon.

Grand Canyon, Ariz., Oct. 14.—President Taft arose early to see the sun rise on the wonderful colorings of the Grand Canyon. The president will remain here until 8:30 p. m. when he will leave for Albuquerque, N. M.

Mr. Taft absolutely refused to discuss any phase of the Crane incident for publication, but it is understood he regards the matter as finally closed. He believes that Crane was indiscreet in talking about diplomatic matters and thinks that he is, therefore, not suited for the place of minister to China or for any other billet in the diplomatic service.

NEW LEADER IN RAILWAY FINANCE

Edward Hawley Has Secured
Control of Missouri & Texas
Road.

(Times Leased Wire.)
New York, Oct. 14.—It is reported in financial circles to-day that the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad, known as the "Katy," has passed into the control of Edward E. Hawley, who has been drawn into the limelight recently as the probable successor of Harriman as the dominant figure in the railroad world.

With a big system already under his control, including the Chesapeake & Ohio, the Chicago & Alton, the Minneapolis & St. Louis, Iowa Central and several other lines, Hawley has gradually forged his way into the forefront of railroad finance.

It is said that James Speyer, the banker, and B. F. Yoakum, the head of the Rock Island system, are behind Hawley in the latest deal.
The report says that Adrian C. Joiner, president of the "Katy," will resign.

BANK ROBBER SHOOTS HIMSELF

ENDS LIFE WHEN DRIVEN TO BAY BY OFFICERS

Dead Bandit Identified as Attorney Who Fled From Los Angeles.

(Times Leased Wire.)
Chicago, Oct. 14.—A robber who committed suicide when cornered by the police yesterday after he had robbed the D. M. Erskine Savings Bank of $500, and who was wounded by Marshal Sheehan during the pursuit, was identified to-day as Lamar H. Harris, an attorney of Los Angeles, by the police of Highland Park, where the daring robbery occurred.

Harris fled from Los Angeles several weeks ago after getting into money troubles.
Cashier Duffy, whose quick action in closing the vaults of the institution because he suspected that Harris was plotting to rob the bank, kept the robber from getting a larger sum of money, told the story of the hold-up.

"The man first came into the bank and inquired about a Mr. Williams. I said that the only Mr. Williams I knew was at Libertyville. He thanked me and walked away. This was in the forenoon.

"Shortly after 2 o'clock he returned in an automobile and entered the bank. His companion remained outside. As he approached the counter I asked him if he had found the man he was looking for, and said he had not. Harris then walked back to the street and talked to the chauffeur. His actions aroused my suspicions and I took some of my money trays and locked them in the vault.

"As I entered my cage he pulled out a revolver and made me call Miss Fitzgerald and Richards, clerks, into my cage. When we were together, he helped himself to all the money in sight, which he stuffed into his pockets and left.

"If any of you try to follow me, I'll kill you," he warned as he went out. When he was outside I telephoned to the marshal.

When the robber reached the machine he found that his chauffeur had allowed the engine to stop and they could not be started quickly. As a consequence Marshal Sheehan was enabled to reach the street and begin the pursuit before the robber could make his escape.

The stranger started to run and was followed by Sheehan. Both fired a number of shots, and the robber was hit by a bullet fired by the marshal. He then deliberately ended his life with the last shell in his revolver.

The woman was about 42 years of age.

FIRE THREATENS WASHINGTON TOWN

(Times Leased Wire.)

North Yakima, Oct. 14.—Because the fire engine would not work, having been allowed to rust after the Fourth of July celebration, fire at Toppish last night burned out five places of business and swept everything until some vacant lots were reached.
The Simon's grocery, Burke's barber shop, a restaurant, the Empires theatre and a Chinese restaurant were destroyed, and also a small rooming house. The loss is probably $15,000.

FIVE DROWN IN RIVER IN ALASKA

SWIFT CURRENT
CAPSIZES STAGE

Only Two Passengers Are Saved—Body of One Victim Recovered.

(Times Leased Wire.)
Skagway, Alaska, Oct. 14.—Word was received here to-day of the drowning of five persons near Oronshaw's road house Monday afternoon by the overturning of a four-horse stage while crossing the Klhni river.

The victims were Mike McNeill, driver; Quentin Grenshaw, John Neil and two natives.

Two other passengers, a white man and a native woman, were saved by clinging to the floating wagon box and were rescued at a bridge some distance below.

Driver McNeill attempted to ford the river, which was swollen to above its normal height by recent rains, and the swift current swept the horses from their feet and overturned the stage.

Only one body, that of a native woman, has been recovered.

WOMAN SHOTS HERSELF ON GRAVE

Body With Bullet Through Heart Found in San Francisco Cemetery.

(Times Leased Wire.)
San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 14.—With a bullet through her heart, the body of a poorly dressed woman was found to-day lying in front of a weed-covered grave in Laurel Hill cemetery.

The board over the little mound bore the single word "Willie." The woman had evidently been dead for about 10 hours. A .38 calibre revolver was found by her side. Nothing was found upon her person that could give a clue to her identity.

The face of the dead woman bore marks of suffering and sickness, perhaps brought on by grief by the death of her child, long since dead, for Laurel Hill cemetery has been abandoned for a half dozen years as a burying place.

The woman was about 42 years of age.

TWO SUFFRAGETTES LIBERATED.

Newcastle, Eng., Oct. 14.—Lady Constance Lottin and Mrs. H. N. Brailsford, who were sentenced to imprisonment on Monday last for taking part in a suffragette demonstration, against David Lloyd-George, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, were liberated last night on a government order, owing to their weak condition.

FIRE DESTROYS TUG.

(Special to the Times.)
Port Arthur, Ont., Oct. 14.—The tug Jim Fuller, owned by Joseph Fineault here, was burned to the water's edge last night thirty miles down the south shore, where it had gone for a load of wood. The loss is $10,000.

SIX MEN LOSE THEIR LIVES IN LAKE ERIE

Survivors of Wreck Are Attacked on Landing at Detroit.

(Times Leased Wire.)
Detroit, Mich., Oct. 14.—Striking seamen indignantly deny that they are in any way responsible for the attack made last night by strike sympathizers upon twelve survivors of the steamer George Stone, which was wrecked off Pelee Point, Lake Erie.

Six men were drowned in the wreck of the steamer and 12 others were rescued.

According to the police, the survivors hardly had set foot upon land when they were set upon by a howling mob, who called them "scabs." John Dietrich, aged 19 years, one of the survivors, is alleged, was twice knocked into the river and nearly drowned before he was rescued the second time.

The six members of the steamer's crew who were drowned while trying to reach shore in a small boat are: Capt. Paul Howell; Peter Daily, a passenger; Second Engineer Wm. Henry; Wm. Boyer, oiler; Lucas, cook; unidentified man, who served as a watchman.

BLAZE AT BATTLEFORD.

(Special to the Times.)
Battleford, Sask., Oct. 14.—A disastrous fire broke out on Main street at 3 o'clock this morning, resulting in the destruction of a portion of the business section. The fire originated in H. McKenzie's warehouse and spread to Cook's butcher store and the general store of Burlington & Spens.

The fire brigade here succeeded in checking the flames. The loss is about $40,000, half insured.

BOMB EXPLOSION.

One Man Killed and Another Injured in St. Petersburg.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 14.—A bomb exploded in a suburb of the city yesterday, killing one of the men who had it in their possession, and wounding the other. Before his arrest, the wounded man attempted to conceal a second bomb and a revolver. The men were dressed as laborers, but it is believed that they were disguised revolutionists who were on their way to the scene of an intended crime when one of their bombs accidentally exploded.

Protest Against Execution.
Paris, Oct. 14.—Ten thousand men, headed by M. Juarez, leader of the Socialists in the Chamber of Deputies, and by M. Vaillant, a Socialist deputy, last night marched to the Spanish embassy, where it was the intention to hold a demonstration in protest against the execution of Prof. Ferrer, the Spanish revolutionist who was shot early yesterday.

The police surrounded the building and repulsed the surging crowds after a sharp attack. The procession moved through the main boulevards with shouts of "down with Alfonso; down with Maura."

DECLARES PEARY'S CHARGES WEAK

KANSAS PROFESSOR ON EXPLORER'S INDICTMENT

Has No Doubt Brooklyn Doctor
Reached the North Pole.

(Times Leased Wire.)
Topeka, Kans., Oct. 14.—Prof. L. L. Dyche, head of the department of natural history of the university of Kansas, who made several trips to the north as a member both of the Peary and the Cook exploring parties, and is personally acquainted with the explorers, has made a statement touching on the present controversy, after reading Commander Peary's statement, published yesterday, said Dyche, "to my mind is absolutely incredible. It is based upon the testimony of ignorant Eskimos, who were incapable of understanding a country to which they had never been before. Well enough to outline such a map as that published and credited by Peary to their explanation. Only intelligent white men with instruments could make their way to such a country and be able to report in detail, upon it a year after the trip was made."

"While I believe Commander Peary reached the pole, accompanied by relays of men, supplies and supplies, backed by four well-equipped supporting parties with Eskimos and trained dogs, I have not the shadow of a doubt that Dr. Cook reached the pole first and exactly as he details in his own published story, supported by the photographs and observations taken by him and printed or told in connection with his story."

"The most astounding part of Commander Peary's story, it seems to me, consists of a statement that Dr. Cook got to the north part of the land bordering on the great Arctic ocean—the point for which he had striven for a month during the hardships of intense cold and the rigors of Arctic climate—with ample supplies, sleds and Eskimos, all in first class condition, and then simply turned back, apparently for no reason.

"How unlikely it is that a man with over twenty years Arctic experience, fired with an ambition of a lifetime, would give up just at a time and place when one of the greatest trophies the world has to bestow upon a brave and daring explorer, was standing within his reach."

SPAIN AROUSED BY EXECUTION

SITUATION HAS BECOME CRITICAL

Shot Which Ended Ferrer's
Life May Be Signal for Revolution.

(Times Leased Wire.)
Madrid, via Hendaia, Oct. 14.—With many leading newspapers predicting revolution and King Alfonso storming at the cabinet for advising him to permit the execution of Prof. Ferrer, with the people aroused almost to mob frenzy and all Europe aghast, Spain to-day is confronted with the most critical situation in its long list of national troubles that have been threatening for the last year to disrupt the nation.

The King is horrified at the storm of protest that has followed the execution of Ferrer, yesterday. It is understood that he bitterly reproached his ministers for having advised him to permit it. He charges that his advisors had kept him ignorant of the true situation, and that he had no idea of the sentiment throughout Europe.

It is understood that the cabinet offered to resign, but the King refused the offer, commanding that the ministers retain their positions and extricate him from the difficulty into which they have thrust him.

The news of the attempt of the great mob in Paris to attack the Spanish embassy was a great shock to the King. The fury with which the news was received by the popular here and the field means made necessary throughout the country to preserve order have given Alfonso grounds for fear.

The threats upon the lives of the royal infants and the lives of the ministry in case the sentence of Ferrer was carried out, are recalled now with the greatest anxiety. Guards have been doubled and orders have been given for the utmost measures of protection for the royal infants. The threats against their lives stated that they would be slain within six months.

DEMOCRATIC BOSS OF BROOKLYN ILL

State Senator McCarver Undergoes Operation for Appendicitis.

(Times Leased Wire.)
New York, Oct. 14.—A bulletin issued from St. Catharines, Ont., at noon to-day, where State Senator Patrick H. McCarver, last night underwent an operation for appendicitis, stated that the condition of the Brooklyn politician was extremely serious at that hour. Although the physicians say that they have not given up hope for his ultimate recovery, they admit that his chances are slim.

Senator McCarver for years has been one of the most interesting characters in New York politics. He has had much to say in nominating Democratic tickets not only in Brooklyn, but also in Greater New York. He wields a powerful influence in Brooklyn, of which city he has long been called the "boss."

"Long Pat" McCarver, in addition to his political fame, has been one of the most interesting and prominent men connected with horse racing, and he was the leader of the fight at Albany against Hughes' anti-betting bill, which gave sport such a check.

DISMEMBERED BODY OF WOMAN IDENTIFIED

Remains Found at Tiverton, R.
I., Those of Fall River
Girl.

(Times Leased Wire.)
Tiverton, R. I., Oct. 14.—Sarah Grinnell, of Fall River, Mass., to-day identified the dismembered body of the young woman found near here as being that of her step-daughter, Bessie R. Grinnell. Surgeons who performed an autopsy on the body declared that they had found evidences of an attempted illegal operation.

The police have been making an effort to clear up the case since last Monday afternoon, when the left leg and part of the right were found by a rural letter carrier. Tuesday the torso was found, exactly a mile from where the legs were found, and yesterday, with the exception of the head, the remaining parts of the body were found. The head is still missing.

ENGINEER FACES GRAVE CHARGE

ACCUSED OF SHUTTING MAN IN FIREBOX

Coal Passer Says Assailant
Tried to Roast Him to Death.

(Times Leased Wire.)

Portland, Ore., Oct. 14.—Accused of attempting to roast his enemy alive in the fire box of the steamer Kansas City, Ayrer Boyer, second assistant engineer of the vessel, was arrested by the police to-day and is held in $5,000 bonds. The warrant charges Boyer with attempting to kill Otto Martin, a coal passer on the Kansas City.

Martin, whose clothing is scorched and flesh burned, told the police that he succeeded in escaping from the fire box by wrenching away an iron grating. He is a man of powerful build, and appeared capable of superhuman effort. He showed the detectives great welts on the palms of his hands where he declared he had grasped the hot grating in order to escape roasting to death.

"We had a quarrel," declared Martin, "and when I wasn't looking he pushed me into the furnace and slammed the door. Then I heard him start the fires by raking fuel over the red hot coals.

"For God's sake let me out. Don't kill a man," I yelled and pounded on the door. He only laughed and jeered at me. Smoke began to come into the firebox and the iron flooring, which was warm, began to grow hotter. When I saw that he wouldn't let me out, I tried the grating. One was a little loose, and, thank God, it gave way after I had worked for a time.

"Boyer was nowhere about. My clothing was burned in places, and I went to a drug store to have my burns dressed, and then I went to police headquarters.

The alleged assault occurred this morning in the hold of the Kansas City, which is preparing to leave for San Francisco to-morrow.

SLOOP OF WAR CLIO
MAY BE LOST

Monteagle Brings News That Search Was Being Made for War Vessel.

When the steamer Monteagle, which reached here to-day, left the Orient, there was a good deal of anxiety felt for the sloop of war Clío which had left Japan for Hongkong and must have had to steam in the teeth of a big typhoon which passed right over her course. H. M. S. Astrea was sent out to search for her but up to the time of sailing no word of the missing war vessel had been heard. She was to have been replaced in a short time by H. M. S. Flora, which had recently been re-commissioned at Colombo.

The Clío, about whose safety some anxiety is felt, is quite a small vessel of only 1,070 tons, and engines of 1,400 h. p. She is officially described in the navy list as a screw sloop, and is armed with six 4-inch quick-firing guns. In most respects the Clío is a ship of very similar type to the Condor, which foundered in a gale off Cape Flattery, in December, 1901, when Commander Clifton Slater and the whole of his crew, numbering over 100, perished. The Clío has a compliment of about 100, and according to the latest official navy list her officers are as follows:

Commander, Charles T. Borrett; Lieutenants, Vyvyan R. N. Porter, Charles H. Forde, Henry R. James; surgeon, Francis J. Gowans; assistant paymaster, Charles H. Carroll; chief artificer engineer, Frank Miller; gunner, James L. Browne.

The Clío, which had already been some years on the China station, was re-commissioned at Hongkong, on September 24, 1908. When at home she is attached to the Chatham division. His Majesty's ship Astrea, which has gone out to search for the Clío, is a second-class twin-screw protected cruiser of 4,300 tons, 9,000 h. p., and 19½ knots speed. She is under the command of Captain F. E. C. Ryan.

Word was also brought of the wreck of the steamer Mōri King, which went ashore on one of the Chusan group of islands. The vessel was broken and the stern part is in thirteen fathoms of water, but no lives were lost, with the exception of one tallyman. The steamer was of 3,507 tons net. Her cargo of coal will be salvaged.

ENTOMOLOGIST IS VISITING VICTORIA

Dr. Hewitt Out Here to Look
Into Protection of Fruit Trees.

Dr. C. Gordon Hewitt, who has just come out from Manchester to assume the duties of Dominion entomologist, in succession to the late Dr. Fletcher, is in the city to-day. He is beginning his new work by making an inspection of fumigation stations throughout the Dominion and, in the west, of the orchards kept on Indian reserves. It is very important to a fruit-raising country like this province that every form of fruit-tree pest shall be kept out absolutely, and especially in view of the prevalence of the destructive San Jose scale in California.

Dr. Hewitt has been inspecting the fumigation station in Vancouver, where nursery stock for this province is treated. To-morrow morning he goes to Duncan to inspect the Indian orchards up in that district and on Saturday he returns to inspect those on the lower Fraser. He is accompanied by Thomas Wilson, in charge of the Dominion fumigation station at Vancouver.

The new official is a young man, considering the varied experience he has had. He is a graduate of Manchester University and has filled a chair there for some years, besides writing considerably and making investigations in entomology. He is an authority on tree-pests and their extermination.

GOOD PROGRESS IN SURVEY WORK

Barkley Sound Railway Line
Located as Far as Boulder Point.

Excellent progress is being made by the survey party which has been out all summer making preliminary locations for the line for the Victoria and Barkley Sound Railway Company. The company's representatives in this city have just received word that the party has reached Boulder Point, 40 miles from Victoria, and are rapidly approaching San Juan, the objective point for this season's operations.

It is said that the route has been found to be most feasible for the operation of a railway. The grade will be heavy tunnelling or bridge work. The section of the island which is traversed by the line is rich in timber, and indications are that the road will be a profitable one from the first day of its operation.

It is understood that at the next session of the legislature the company will apply for aid to the enterprise, the application being in the nature of a request that the bonds be guaranteed for a term of years.

EXCHEQUER COURT WILL SIT IN VICTORIA

Although No Cases Have Been Set Down, Judge Cassels
Will Be Here.

A general sitting of the Exchequer Court of Canada will be held at the law courts here, commencing on Wednesday, October 27th, at 11 a. m. No cases have as yet been set down for the sitting, but Mr. Justice Cassels will be present in order to give an opportunity to all parties desirous of having cases tried to do so.

The death occurred last evening at the family residence, 1421 Taunton street, of Basil Rowland Estes, the 11-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Estes. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Hanna parlors, Yates street. Rev. T. E. Holling will conduct the services.

Charles Thornton, a motorman on one of the electric trams, met with an accident last evening that came very nearly being much more serious than it proved. In reaching out to see if another car was coming while crossing the causeway, his head came in contact with one of the metal posts. His injuries were not very serious.

Joseph B. Peity, who is awaiting trial at the spring assizes on a charge of having caused the death of Alex. Farfar of the Empress hotel boiler-room staff, has been admitted to bail. H. H. Standley made application to Justice Lamman this morning and bail was fixed at two sureties of $2,500 each. Manager Humble and Geo. D. Ramsay were accepted.

Representatives of the Selkirk Centennial project are expected to be here to-morrow to discuss the world's fair which Winnipeg has in mind for 1912. They will meet with members of the Board of Trade and the Vancouver Island Development League, and it is understood that a call will be made on the provincial government to ask for a provincial grant towards the fair.

The executive of the Vancouver Island Development League has written to Mayor Hall in reference to a statement made recently at the city hall to the effect that the league had spent in advertising the sum of $1,000. It is pointed out that up to the present the league has only drawn $2,000 from the civic appropriation, and that such an extravagant statement regarding its expenditures is an injustice to the league and its work.

Last Tuesday evening Dr. Fagan, the provincial health officer, addressed the Men's Own Social Club of the First Congregational church on the subject of "Tuberculosis or the Trail of Transgression." The doctor's address was most enlightening, and one which all thoughtful persons should have heard. Dr. Fagan gave first the history of the consumptive germ, and ended up his lecture by suggesting a method of prevention. The essence of his address hinged upon the motto, "Prevention is better than cure." Dr. Fagan's lecture was the first of a series which has been arranged dealing with city problems and augurs well for the balance of the course. A hearty vote of thanks was extended to the doctor for his splendid address.

LIBEL SUIT BY
SIR F. BORDEN
HEARING OF EVIDENCE
OPENS AT KENTVILLE

Miss Chalifour Denies She Was Assisted Financially
by Plaintiff.

Kentville, N. S., Oct. 14.—Mr. Justice Drysdale ruled in the Eyoopener case yesterday, that the admissions of Sir Frederick Borden would have to be proved in the regular way. They would not be received in evidence from Mrs. Allison.

Mrs. Allison, called, said her daughter went to Montreal in June, 1896, a week after Sir Frederick had left their house. In the interval she had had two conversations with him.

Being handed a copy of the Eyoopener, put in evidence, Mrs. Allison identified the facsimile letters in the paper as copies of her letters. Photographs of Sir Frederick and her daughter were identified by the witness. The woman in question, whose name was left blank in the Eyoopener, did live in Ottawa on the same street she lived on. She had seen Sir Frederick with her, and she and her husband had an awful row on the street when she came home late at night. She had come back at half-past two in the morning in the same cab she had left in earlier at night.

Sir Frederick went to the house. Sometimes he used to stop by a broken-down fence across the street, where a lot of old boxes were piled up. He went into the house on several occasions when the husband was away. She had seen this. The name of the woman, whose name was left blank in the paper, was Mrs. McPharland.

Witness said her first husband had died in 1887. His name was James Chalifour. Her second husband was Samuel Allison. Mrs. Allison, admitted sending letters to Mr. Edwards, editor of the Eyoopener.

Mrs. Archibault, a boarding house proprietress on Dorchester street, Montreal, took the stand in the afternoon. She kept a boarding house on St. Lawrence street thirteen years ago. Hester Chalifour had a room there. Sir Frederick had called at the house and told Mrs. Archibault that he was Mrs. Chalifour's uncle. He had called on different occasions. One night she heard a conversation after midnight. She had requested Miss Chalifour to stop talking. Sir Frederick left in the morning.

Mr. Wickwire sprang a sensation when he called Miss Chalifour in rebuttal. Her identity was established. She gave her age as 45 years. She went to Montreal on account of ill-health and for a time was employed in the Crown timber office of the Quebec government. She explained her whereabouts up to two years ago, when she went to Louisiana for her health. Twenty years ago she left home on account of ill-health and unsatisfactory conditions at home. She went to a friend's home, but her mother followed her there and she left. Objections by Mr. Ritchie were received.

Miss Chalifour stated that she went to her aunt's in Toronto at one time, and was taken back to Ottawa by her uncle, Mr. Grahame. Her mother said nothing on her return. On a previous occasion her mother had pulled her out of bed by her hair. Objections by Mr. Ritchie were not sustained. Witness said she told her mother she would not return until her brother had been taken to the asylum, as she had seen him threatening to kill her mother with a knife.

Miss Chalifour said Sir Frederick Borden never visited her at Mrs. Archibault's house. Sir Frederick Borden had never had improper relations with her. She had never heard her board paid by Sir Frederick Borden, nor had she ever been helped financially by him. She had at one time to leave her lodging house because she could not pay her board. She had to work hard for her money. Miss Chalifour's position in the Crown timber office was secured for her through the good offices of a former boarder at her mother's and Hon. Mr. Paget. The last time she saw Sir Frederick Borden was eight years ago, when she met him on the street in Ottawa. To Mr. Ritchie Miss Chalifour said four years ago she had an enlargement of the head and her memory was bad since.

A letter from Miss Chalifour to her mother was handed to Miss Chalifour, who started to read it through. After a while she said every page was written by her, and she swore that while she had written it, it was not true. Another letter was identified as written by her, and still another. She said she had done everything in her power to get her mother down south. Three or four more letters were introduced and identified.

"Are you in the habit of lying when you are not on your oath?"

"Yes, especially to my mother. I would lie to beat the band. If you knew my mother you would not wonder."

"Not one of these letters were written by me," said she. "Every time I said a letter was mine, I told a lie, and I told it under oath. I never wrote such trash. My signature is always on my letters. I acknowledge no letter without it."

Flipping the papers on the floor she said she had sworn they were hers in sarcasm. To Judge Drysdale she repeated her statement that she had lied.

"Do you notice the postmark is Jacksonville?"

"It looks like that, don't it," was the reply. "I was there at that time."

The letter was not in her handwriting. Each successive letter was reproduced in turn. Miss Chalifour said she had been in New Orleans before going to Jacksonville. She first said she was there a year; then she said it was in Louisiana. A letter produced was shown, witness saying that the writing looked like hers.

"I don't want to get you in trouble," said Mr. Ritchie.

"You need not worry about getting me into trouble," was the reply.

With alternate smiles and gestures of defiance, she repudiated the letters, which were in turn initiated and filed.

The photograph of the witness exhibited in the morning was handed to the witness. Witness seized it and tore it into shreds before she could be prevented from doing so.

"I am not going to have my mother have my photograph," Everybody gazed in wonder at the deed, for the offence was a breach of court rules. Miss Chalifour was not repentant. Judge Drysdale told her of the enormity of destroying court exhibits. She must act differently, he said, or he would have to send her below. "I hardly know what to do with you," said His Lordship.

"I am not on trial," said Miss Chalifour, rising to her feet in anger. "I am here to give evidence," said she, stretching out her arms. "I fall to see why my private letters have been brought to court and given publicity. I have said on oath that Sir Frederick Borden had nothing to do with me."

Mr. Ritchie called attention to the improbability of the witness' actions. The judge said she would have to behave, or he would place her in custody and adjourn the court.

The court adjourned at 5 o'clock.

Sir Frederick Borden arrived in town yesterday, and went to his solicitor's office. He has not yet appeared in court.

TAFT SEEKS NEW MINISTER TO CHINA

Friends of Crane Declare Resignation Due to Political Plot.

Phoenix, Ariz., Oct. 14.—President Taft is much disappointed over the situation which required the resignation of Charles H. Crane as minister to China and is again on a still hunt for a first class man for the place.

The appointment of Crane was made only after the president and Secretary Knox had combed the field over and offered the place to a number of men who declined the honor. In Crane the president thought he had the ideal man and so announced at the time. It is probable that another appointment will not be made until the president has had a conference with Knox.

Meanwhile the situation in Peking is said to be very unsatisfactory to the administration.

Crane's Friends Indignant.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—Indignant at the action of Secretary of State Knox, in demanding the resignation of Charles H. Crane, as minister to China, friends of the Chicagoan are expressing the belief that it was due to a political plot. They also are pointing out that Crane's contribution of $10,000 to the Russians during the war with Japan, may have had some bearing on the case, as well as his declaration that Russia was forced into war by a treacherous enemy.

It also is intimated here that Japan may have objected to Crane going to China.

BRYAN IN FAVOR OF
HOME RULE FOR ALASKA

Says Territory Should Be Allowed to Work Out Own Destiny.

Seattle, Wash., 14.—Adherents of the conservation policy of the Roosevelt administration are greatly pleased at the endorsement given by Wm. J. Bryan in his speech at the Natural Amphitheatre Tuesday. Mr. Bryan did not refer specifically to Secretary of the Interior Ballinger or to Chief Forester Pinchot during the course of his remarks on conservation, but his inferences were clear to his listeners and he was loudly applauded.

"Leave the question of perpetual franchises for the water power sites of the great west to the common people and there will be a thousand to one against them," said Mr. Bryan. "Who can measure the value of one mountain stream? And yet hundreds of these rivers are becoming the private property of individuals for all time, and the only defence of the officials who countenance this wholesale grabbing of water power by a gigantic monopoly, is found in a legal technicality."

The Nebraskan also made a radical attack on the Alaskan policy of President Taft, uttered in the president's speech at the exposition September 30th. Taft declared that local self-government home rule in a country like Alaska should not be given serious consideration until the population and developed resources had increased.

"Alaska has a right to make her own mistakes," said Mr. Bryan, "if she makes mistakes she will suffer from them and then correct them, but if we deny her self-government and in attempting to dictate her local affairs, make mistakes, they will be long remembered, and we shall be responsible for the condition of affairs which follow."

"Alaska is asking for just what they are fighting for the world over. They want to be the architects of their own affairs."

KILLED BY FALL ON

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 14.—While celebrating his thirtieth wedding anniversary, Alex. Holmlund, 37 years old, was killed by falling from the third story of the Jensen flats, 517 Eastlake avenue. His death was due to a broken neck.

Holmlund left his home at 829 Twenty-third avenue shortly before noon Monday. He was happy over the anniversary of his marriage and had $2 with which to purchase something for his wedding anniversary. On his way he called at a brewery where he drank copiously of beer.

Detective Clark, who investigated the case, learned that Holmlund went down town to finish his celebration, and it is inferred that late at night, when his thoughts reverted to his wedding anniversary and his dinner he had promised his wife, he wandered

POLITICAL MALPRACTICES.

No doubt, there are many members of Parliament who might have been unseated for corrupt practices if half of the stories told are true. There are also persons in Victoria who are not members of Parliament who would be in jail to-day for acts committed in connection with an election if the authorities responsible for the enforcement of the criminal law had done their duty. This is a proposition which does not depend upon the tattle of the streets for its proof. It is a fact confessed and proven aside from any confession. The disgraceful incident of the late Dominion election in Victoria has not yet passed from the memory of the people of Canada. It created a sensation in this city at the time, but it appears to have made a more painful impression in other parts of Canada than it did in British Columbia, probably because we have been made more familiar with such despicable political games by various acts of our own Attorney-General, who in the case in question refused to take action for the punishment of the criminal. We have become altogether too callous in our attitude towards offences none the less criminal although committed by political adventurers whose conception of statesmanship is "playing the game," and playing to win by hook or by crook, by means which are usually foul, dishonorable and mean. As we have said, the incident of the late Dominion general election has not yet passed from the public mind, judging from the occasional comment of eastern newspapers. The Ottawa Free Press says:

"The Victoria, B. C. Post and its father, the Colonist, have had the effrontery to revive the issues of last year's election campaign in that city against Hon. William Templeman, and when the Victoria Times, as was natural under the circumstances, retorted with a vigorous reference to the forged and garbled Borden telegram, the Post had 'gall' enough to say:

"Now, the Post, in common with everybody else throughout Canada, who had to listen for months to the purchased expressions of virtuous though venal indignation which were poured forth by every subsidized Liberal rag throughout the Dominion of Canada, is pretty well tired of the subject."

"The Post has reason enough to be 'pretty well tired of the subject.' It doubtless wishes that it could be put into the political lumber cupboard with other incidents of the last two years; but the Post must remember that the affair of the garbled telegram has never yet been explained to the satisfaction of the people of Canada, and that while it may be 'tired of the subject' other people will not be tired until the facts come out."

"Who was the man who altered the Borden telegram?"

"Who was the man who received absolution from a high cleric under false pretences?"

"When the Post has answered these two questions, it can have all the opportunity it wants to exhibit its weariness; until it has answered them, it ought to keep silent on one of the most disgraceful incidents in the modern political history of Canada."

JOURNALISTIC PROSTITUTION.

Just think of newspapers with their hands deep in the provincial treasury as the hands of the Matson battery of three—are referring to the "purchased expressions of virtuous though venal indignation which were poured forth by every subsidized Liberal rag throughout the Dominion of Canada." The Times has said, and reiterates its statement, that the Matson triumvirate alone draws more unearned pay from the government of British Columbia in one year than all the Liberal newspapers west of the lakes combined receive from the Dominion government. And in the one case the money is wasted as far as service to the public is concerned, in the other it is legitimate remuneration for actual services performed. For proof of this statement we refer the public to the columns of the Colonist, the Post and the Week. Never in the history of journalism in Canada was there such a scandalous exhibition of graft and greed on the one hand and of shameless waste of public money on the other. If our readers will take the trouble to look at one of these government advertisements they will observe that it gives notice of the removal of four voters from the lists. A column and a half of space is occupied by that intimation of four departed electors. There are twenty inches of space at least in one column of a newspaper and fourteen lines to the inch. It is an easy matter to compute the cost to the province of the removal from the list of these four names, basing the estimate upon the ordinary advertising rates, which we may be sure will not be abated a jot on such a glorious opportunity. The question may pertinently be asked, if it costs hundreds of dollars to advertise the removal of four names from one list of voters, what will the cost be of advertising the removal of thousands of voters from all the lists throughout the province? The above may be accepted as a sample of the manner in which the public business of British Columbia is conducted by the McBride government and of the methods adopted to secure the support of "independent newspapers." It is in itself a sufficient reason for turning that government out of office. Of course the opinions of organs are above price. They are unbiased and unpurchasable. This is a matter which ought to be the subject of a parliamentary investigation. But it is not the first instance in which the Matson bureau has humbled journalism in British Columbia in the dust and caused newspapers to be scoffed at and jeered at as the most mercenary and degraded of all our public institutions.

LABOR ON THE G. T. P.

Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson cannot understand why the people of British Columbia should object to the importation of a few thousand Oriental laborers to facilitate the work of construction upon the mountain section of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. Apparently there are a good many things connected with the industrial life of Canada and the aims and ambitions of Canadians that Sir Charles but dimly comprehends, judging from the observations he has confided to the press since his life tour of this country. It may be that the inability of the late president of the Grand Trunk to appreciate these things and his evident dearth of sympathy with our efforts and aspirations have had something to do with the lack of success of the Grand Trunk Railway compared with the unequalled success of its great rival and competitor the Canadian Pacific Railway. And it may also be that now the executive control of the first trunk railway in Canada and the second to become a real national line working from the Atlantic to the Pacific has been transferred from Great Britain to Canada there will be a more inspiring tale to tell of its operations, inspiring to Canadians and profitable to stockholders. Whether justified or not, there is no question as to the fact that there is a general impression that the Grand Trunk Railway has been hampered in its operations by long-distance control of its affairs. That incubus—which we mention without prejudice—has now been removed and the Canadian management will have an opportunity to show what it can do to raise the Grand Trunk Railway to the standard attained by its sister lines in this country.

As for the suggestion of Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson in regard to the importation of Oriental laborers, he ought to understand that the request cannot be granted, Sir Charles has lately completed a tour of this country, and he ought to understand from the sentiment he has encountered, if he mixed with the people at all, the utter impossibility of such a suggestion being adopted. For our part we cannot see any reason why Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson keeps harping on the subject. The only justification for his bringing it up so often is that there is not a transcontinental line on the continent that has not been built with the aid of Oriental labor. The discrimination will of course increase the initial cost of the road. That is one of the results of the new conditions which prevail today and of the general repugnance to yellow labor. It is all very well to say that the strangers can be deported after they have fulfilled their mission. We believe that was said of the Oriental army imported by Mr. Onderdonk when he undertook his contract with the C. P. R. But the Chinese who came remained, or most of them did—and they brought others in their train. There may be some difficulty in securing laborers to work on the Pacific division of the Grand Trunk. But it is not on record that the contractors have complained of a dearth of labor so far. Of course these gentlemen are not in the habit of speaking of their troubles for publication, and it may be that they have confided them—

Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson that they think better to keep hidden from the public. In the meantime the prairie sections of the line will soon be completed. That ought to release thousands of laborers for work on the British Columbia section. Possibly Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, by reason of his unfamiliarity with conditions on this continent with regard to railway construction is inclined to magnify the difficulties of the situation. At any rate, he has talked too freely about the necessity for the importation of Orientals.

The Colonist is mistaken. The scheme of connecting Vancouver Island by rail has not been omitted from the development programme of the Liberal party. It was dealt with by Mr. Oliver in his speech on Tuesday evening. The Dominion government has voted a subsidy already for a part of the line. It will set aside a further subsidy as required until the line finally reaches the terminus at Port George. This is the only feasible, the only practical, the one way suggested, of giving direct rail connection with a transcontinental road. In all the federal administration has set apart nearly seven million dollars for the encouragement of railway construction in British Columbia. The fact is admitted that the Dominion subsidies alone are not sufficient to warrant capitalists in building railways through such a rugged country. But if the Dominion subsidies were supplemented by such additional subsidies as the province could well afford there is no doubt that most of the mileage projected would be built within a reasonable time. Instead of the provincial government acting along practical lines and co-operating with the Dominion—the only method under which anything can be done—it refuses to recognize anything the Dominion has done. It is going to pursue a policy of its own. It is going to signify its independence. It will have dealings with the Canadian Northern Railway only, which has received no subsidies from the Dominion nor assurances of such, and has twice told British Columbia that in the absence of federal assistance it would not construct its line through the coast. Which all means that the McBride government is in the hands of monopoly and merely intends to deceive the people by pretending to have railway policy. That fact is self-evident, and we shall have ample proof of it should the government be sustained.

The old-fashioned Lord Mayor's show, which for a great many years has been one of the most picturesque functions to be witnessed in England, will be abandoned this year by the new Lord Mayor-elect, Sir John Knill. He proposes to have a military and naval display on the occasion of his assumption of office, and 5,000 volunteers from both branches of the service will parade in his procession. Only the gilded chariots of the Lord Mayor and the sheriffs will remain of the old-time pageantry.

EXAGGERATION.

(Mrs. Pankhurst has written to the papers to say that the imprisoned suffragettes have never bitten the Holloway wardresses. It appears that they have only kicked them.)

What taradiddles people tell. What lies the press delights in writing! No suffragettes, condemned to dwell in Holloway's most noxious cell, have ever made a wardress yell.

By biting. Believe me, this is not the case. They only kicked her in the face.

It fires my wrath, it stirs my gall. To note how lies are manufactured! 'Twas not by suffragettes at all. That, during their most recent brawl, The office windows in Whitehall Were fractured.

The story is, of course, untrue. It was a teapot that I threw.

'Tis also false, I do declare. That (as the papers said on Monday) I seized my hostess by the hair. At luncheon in Cadogan Square, And hurried her headlong down the stair, Last Sunday.

FALL FAIR 'LIMERICK.'

To the Editor.—Will you kindly permit me to ask the editor of the late "Fall Fair Limerick" what has become of the above named venture, so extensively advertised before the fair commenced? Have the prizes for the line wanted been yet awarded, and if so, to whom? Perhaps the Limerick editor would oblige the public by publishing the Limerick in question, de novo, together with the winning line for each prize promised, and the names and addresses of the authors of the said lines. An unsigned (perhaps facetiously circulated) is in existence to the effect that the party responsible for the venture in question is on "sick leave." However, this is hardly sufficient cause for the long delay and ominous silence regarding it, since the absence or presence of the party referred to should in no way affect the result.

A MAYORALTY POSTSCRIPT.

To the Editor.—There is an old saying that the gist of a woman's letter is in the postscript.

Mrs. Atkins, after classifying all residents of Oak Bay as "outsiders" in regard to Victoria's civic affairs, naively informed us that she was a part of the looked on as a strict, since she may be pays rates in both municipalities.

Then why should the virtue of impartiality be denied others in the same condition? Most of the Oak Bay residents own as much property in the city as they do in the suburb. All of them live the busy day through in the city, where they earn their living and spend what they earn. All of them are Victorians and proud of it, with a pride that is not inalienable to shame at things said and done by narrow gauge Victorians.

And who are these people who are not allowed by Mrs. Atkins to be a part of Victoria's new growth and future destiny? Mr. F. A. Pauline will pardon the introduction of his name as an example, since he very ably filled the seat of an alderman and might well have occupied a higher chair had he so willed.

Without mentioning other names, I can recall at random two Oak Bayites who have made Victoria's architecture famous across the continent, a gurgeon of prominence, the owner of the newest and best block in Victoria, members of the leading law firms, managers of public and private corporations, accountants of known standing, contractors, photographers, shopkeepers and artisans, all of whose occupations are carried on through every street of Victoria.

Victorians abroad and at home are these men. Dallas need to the contrary notwithstanding.

J. HERRICK MCGREGOR.

A VIGOROUS IMPERIALIST.

To the Editor.—As a people of the British Empire we don't have to crawl into our holes from recent occurrences. Just as we expected, the moment the old lion's tail is in danger, around come the whelps. Not long ago the press gathered in the Aorta of the Empire. Soon after ministers right from the throne of the people assembled in the same place, and I may ask why should they not be there? The press is our daily companion. When Mr. Nelson, of the Times, went, we, in heart, went with him; when the ministers gathered from all parts of the northern and southern hemisphere, they knew a solid phalanx of the sons and daughters and their offspring did not know the music of retreat. We of passing years are handing down a heritage to our young men and women. Whilst we in ripe years stand on the watch tower we feel safe; the work we have done will be continued. The Jack Tars, whom we are all proud to doff our hats to, are the same to-day as long ago. The soldiers on land also, I personally had some experience in the last New Zealand war, which ran along '08 and '09. I fall to recall a single instance of cowardice. I hope I am not trespassing on your space, but very soon we shall, in the colonies, be casting votes for members to the House of Commons, London.

As a starter, all parties will join hands. They will be elected irrespective of any party. Even at my time of life I expect to cast at least one vote on these lines. Premiers of Canada will visit the Antipodes; Premiers of the Antipodes will visit Canada, of intention of views on commerce, boards of trade, Laborites and Socialists will all have their say. In conclusion, Mr. Editor, having spent 42 years in various colonies, no twisting of the lion's tail would stand for a moment. Money and men, just as in the Boer war, are ready.

NO ASSIGNMENT FOR JUDGE IN CHAMBERS

Failure to Make One Ties Up Legal Business in the City.

E. BEIDFORD BURIED WITH MILITARY HONORS

Impressive Services in Connection With Funeral Yesterday Afternoon.

Very impressive were the services yesterday afternoon at the funeral of the late Corp. Ernest Briefford, the victim of a distressing accident at Kamloops a few days ago, deceased having been a highly esteemed member of the Fifth Regiment. He was buried with full military honors.

The regiment, under command of Major A. W. Currie, paraded at the drill hall at 2 p.m. and marched to Hanna's undertaking parlors. Here services were conducted by Rev. Wm. Drabn of the Lutheran church. Mr. Drabn made allusion to the sad circumstances attendant upon the death of the young man whose life and character were noble and exemplary. The hymns sung were "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Rock of Ages."

The remains were placed on a gun carriage covered by the Union Jack and many floral offerings. The regimental band led the parade and played Chopin's "Funeral March" as the procession moved off.

At Ross Bay cemetery the officiating clergyman read the burial service, and as the casket was lowered into the grave three volleys were fired and the bugle sounded the salute and later "Last Post." A number of Woodmen of the World were in attendance, deceased having been a member of that organization.

Among those who contributed flowers were: Members of No. 2 Company, Fifth Regiment; members of the Victoria Camp, Modern Workmen of America; Mrs. and Mrs. Carter; Mrs. and Mrs. Phillips; Mr. and Mrs. T. K. Anderson; Mr. and Mrs. J. Richards; Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Beckwith; Mr. and Mrs. E. Millington; Mr. and Mrs. Brown; Mr. and Mrs. Pike; Mr. and Mrs. J. Hall and Mr. and Mrs. C. Sivertz.

A quiet wedding took place on Tuesday afternoon at the home of the bride's father, Blanchard street, when the Rev. A. Henderson united in marriage Mr. Walter S. Robinson, of Duncan, B. C., and Miss Katherine F. McCrimmon, eldest daughter of A. F. McCrimmon. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson left on the afternoon boat for Seattle, en route to Chicago and upon their return will take up their residence at Duncan.

The Bible classes of the boys' department of the Y.M.C.A. will be opened to-morrow evening. The employed boys and students will meet to-morrow at 6 o'clock and after having tea the class will be taken by A. J. Brace. On Saturday morning at 10.30 o'clock the intermediates will study before going into the gymnasium, and at 11.30 o'clock the juniors are to have a class. The two latter classes will be conducted by R. Jones, the boys' secretary. All members of the association are invited to attend their respective classes.

DISTINGUISHED AFRICAN LEADER

Sir Percy Fitzgerald Addresses the Canadian Club To-morrow.

Sir Percy Fitzgerald, who is to address the Canadian Club to-morrow, is one of the leading figures in South Africa and has been prominent in the federation movement. He was born at King William's Town, of Irish descent. In 1884 he went to the Transvaal and accompanied Lord Randolph Churchill's expedition through Mashonaland. In 1891 he was in charge of the intelligence department for several years, retiring in 1907. Sir Percy was long associated with Lord Milner and Dr. Jameson in his work and was honorary secretary of the reform committee. He is the author of "The Transvaal From Within," "The Outspan," "Through Mashonaland," "With Pick and Pen," and "Jock of the Bushveld." He has just been to England as a delegate to the South African union conference. The union parliament act will come into force on May 31st next, the eighth anniversary of the signing of peace. Speaking of the new federation in Winnipeg a few days ago he said:

"We had a difficult job on our hands, but the conclusion is most satisfactory. Just one supreme parliament is all there will be in South Africa, as there is now in England. There will be no smaller provincial parliaments as there are in Canada, and all matters of national importance and all legislative transactions will be dealt with there. Any small local matters will be delegated to provincial councils which in a way will serve the purpose of provincial parliaments. The difference of course is that this method will be much less expensive and the country will not be filled up with politicians and office holders."

Speaking of Imperial defence he said: "Cape Colony and Natal have made a cash contribution, considering that the best solution of the problem. The Transvaal and Orange Free State had not yet disposed of the matter, but when we meet in May next we hope to take up the matter, and will probably follow the example set by the other two states. We hope, however, to maintain all our land defences and have a naval base or two."

CLEVER WORK BY LOCAL DRAUGHTSMAN

Handsome Illuminated Address to Lord Strathcona Prepared by R. C. Flitton.

There is now on exhibition in the show window of Messrs. Hibben & Co., Government street, perhaps as fine a sample of the draughtsman's skill as has ever been shown in Victoria. This is an illuminated address containing the text of the official welcome extended to Lord Strathcona during his Lordship's recent visit to Victoria by His Worship Mayor Hall.

R. C. Flitton, assistant draughtsman to John Adam, of the city engineer's department, was entrusted with the task of transcribing the address on parchment, and as a result of his labors he has produced what is considered by all who have seen a real work of art. The text of the address on the body of the sheet appears in two colors—red and blue—and the whole is surrounded by an appropriate border of maple leaves reproduced with color-effects so faithfully treated as to command immediate attention. Centered in this border on either side are likenesses of Their Royal Highnesses King Edward and Queen Alexandra. At the top appears the coat of arms of British Columbia, and at the bottom a view of the parliament buildings—all executed in pen and ink in colors.

The address bears the signature of Lewis Hall as mayor, and W. J. Dowler, city clerk, who wrote the text of the address. On the left-hand lower corner appears in gold the seal of the corporation.

The address will be forwarded to Lord Strathcona in London in a few days.

DIAMOND AUTOMOBILE TIRES

WEED NON-SLIP CHAINS

This is the time of year, above all others, when it is imperative for you to have good tires on your car. A cut in one of your covers did not matter so much in dry summer weather—now it means the wet gets in and rots the canvas—and your tire is virtually ruined.

Buy a couple of covers, have the cuts in your old one vulcanized and save half the price of four covers.

BUT BUY THE BEST

We stock Diamonds. They are "the best." The Diamond company guarantees you a certain mileage. No other tire company can afford to do this.

THIS CONCERNS YOU—KINDLY READ!

We have been doing our best for the last 18 months to get you interested in something that affects YOU. Yes: "Anyone and everyone," and that is in your food; and the prices that you have been and are still paying for the necessities (which in conjunction with the AIR, and which, by the way, is absolutely free, thank goodness!) that you must have in order to live. We have preached and we believe that all food products should be sold to YOU at a price that is fair. Fair to the Manufacturer; Fair to the man that helps produce the same, and fair to the consumer. We do not believe that any one or any Corporation, simply because their Money has placed them in control of any article of food, should dictate to the retail trade at large and through them to you, its selling price, no matter what may be the cost of its production, or should they be able to say: If you don't sell what I offer you and at my price, I refuse to sell to you at all. How long are the powers that be going to stand by and allow it to continue, and how long are you? The Anti-Combine Store has been fighting the battle of food prices for you in a small way and we are still at it, but there is a limit to our efforts against practically unlimited capital and absolute Monopoly. WE ASK YOU ALL TO WAKE UP to the fact that practically every mouthful of food that you eat you are contributing to the everlasting appetite of one or more of these gigantic corporations. We do not advocate the slaughtering of prices or ruinous competition in any line of business, but to give fair value for value received and that to anyone. But when it comes to Certain Corporations holding you up (this is plain English) simply because you cannot obtain the article elsewhere, such conditions being made possible by the Corporations interested, we say again, to YOU, WAKE UP! These few thoughts are Our thoughts; they are what Copas & Young, the Anti-Combine Grocers, at the Corner of Fort and Broad Streets, think; and having thought it, say it. Now we ask YOU, What do YOU THINK? and What! WILL YOU SAY? Yes, What?

A. O. F. TO MEET GARRISON TEAM

BAYS AND ESQUIMALT MATCHED ON SATURDAY

Col. Peters Watches Soldiers at Early Morning Practice.

What kind of a soccer team has the A. O. F.? is the question among soccer players. The new team has already established a reputation for having got together a fast organization which has eleven players who work together with a clockwork combination that will take the measure of the other four teams in the senior division of the Victoria and District Association Football League.

The new organization makes its debut Saturday against the heavy Garrison eleven, and in the ranks of the new team there is an air of satisfaction and confidence which is taken to mean that the Garrison will be up against a different proposition from that which faced it at the Canteen grounds last Saturday, when Esquimalt went down at five goals to one.

Outside half a dozen practices the new team has not shown what it can do. It is, however, claimed that its ranks contain several prominent soccer men that were last year in the Esquimalt ranks and a couple of players who have played in senior company in the old country.

Saturday's match between the A. O. F. men and the Garrison ought to offer up the best soccer dish this season to date, for the soldiers are in form and this year are stronger than when they played a draw with the Victoria West team last season. Football has commenced to boom at Work Point and Colonel Peters has had a big hand in the organization of the Work Point seven. Soccer before breakfast is part of the day's work at the barracks, a general muster is called every morning at 7.15, and rain and mud are not allowed as an excuse for non-attendance.

Until 8 o'clock the soldiers are at work on the soccer field, and on more than one occasion Colonel Peters has been at the playing field to see that the attention given to the game is not of a desultory character.

With the colonel's example before them the barracks men have played the game as British soldiers always do when the incentive is before them. This year the incentive as put forth by Colonel Peters in no soft terms is the Victoria and District soccer championship, so all the teams in the league know that the old days in sport at the Garrison are back again.

The field instructor, now that Sergeant Major Warder has gone to Ottawa, is Sergeant Askey, liked by every man who has sport at heart, in the Garrison ranks. The sergeant is on the field at 7.15 a. m. daily, and sees the attention necessary is given the game. The result is that the Garrison team, with an average weight of one hundred and sixty-eight pounds, is fit and ready.

This is the proposition the new A. O. F. team is up against for their first appearance in Victoria soccer. Those who saw the soldiers play at Esquimalt last Saturday say the team was fit and was never pushed. The A. O. F. report a team of top-notchers and a fine game for Saturday seems probable.

Will the attendance be more than fifty?

The second game for Saturday is between the Bays and Esquimalt. On form the game will be close. The Bays will not have the same team as last Saturday and their ranks will be without Sam Lofimer, who departs to-day for California to play on the B. C. team. The Esquimalt team has had time to strengthen their ranks, and can put out a better aggregation than that which was defeated five to one by the Garrison last week.

While the Bays are hoped to win, with the loss of Lofimer and the weakened back division, the Esquimalt eleven can give them a hard go for it, and with last Saturday's team strengthened in three places, ought to put up a winning fight.

KETCHEL AND JOHNSON READY FOR BOUT

Michigan Man Will Weigh 177 When He Enters the Ring.

(Times Leased Wire.)
San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 14.—When Stanley Ketchel enters the ring on Saturday many fans will be amazed at the size of the Michigan lion, for they will see a full-fledged heavy weight, and not the middleweight they saw box Papke a few months ago. Ketchel has taken on a great deal of flesh and he will weigh 177 pounds when he faces Johnson.

It was a slow day yesterday for both fighters. Johnson rested practically all day. Ketchel did a little road work and a few stunts in the gym. To-day the fighters are engaging in their last boxing. As both men are practically on edge, they will be careful about their boxing, as neither man cares to take a chance of injuring himself at this late stage.

There is likely to be a wrangle over the side bet. In the event that W. W. Naughton, the original stakeholder, turns over the money to some other stakeholder before the battle, Britt will undoubtedly take down Ketchel's end of the bet, which amounts to $5,000. Naughton is fearful of the law, as the bet is in violation of the statutes. This would break the agreement if the money should be turned over to another stakeholder.

J. B. A. A. RUGBY MEN PRACTICE THIS EVENING

Team Will Be Selected for Practice Game on Saturday.

J. B. A. A. Rugby football players will hold a workout and practice this evening at the local club rooms. A big turnout is looked for as there is little time left to select the team that will wear the J. B. A. A. this winter. After considerable gymnasium work, which will consist of scrum, formation, etc., Capt. Al. Jeffs will take the boys out on the road for a few miles on a jog trot. After that the executive will hold a meeting, and the team for Saturday's practice match with Victoria selected. One week from Saturday the Bays will play the McGill team at Vancouver, and the return match between the two fifteens will be played on local grounds on Thanksgiving Day.

NEW RUGBY FOOTBALL LEAGUE TO BE FORMED

Intermediate Rugger Should Enter League Without Delay.

Intermediate Rugby football is a much needed addition to this city to get more pigskin chasers into harness and working order, and steps will be taken to get a strong intermediate league started this season. Already the James Bay Athletic Association have had a large squad of intermediates out, and the navy blues have material enough to make up a good fifteen.

Besides the Bays, the North Wards are keen on Rugby and are doing all in their power to get things going. Now that they have the makings of a team all they are waiting for is a league to enter. The same case prevails with the High school boys, who are practicing hard right along, and who will have a good team this year. The University school should also be able to get a good representation together, as there are many good ruggerers in that institution.

Taken all in all, if a league were organized at least half a dozen entries would be received, and Rugby football would be on the boom. There is nothing like getting the younger generation interested in the game if the senior teams want material to select from in the future.

A meeting of all those interested in Rugby intermediate football will be called at the J. B. A. A. some evening next week, when plans for a league will be drawn up. In the meantime any teams who desire to enter the coming league would be doing a lot for the Party of Fifty Expected to Arrive at Seattle in December.

A letter received by Dean Priest, of the University, reports her mission unexpectedly successful. Fifty students of varying ages are accompanying her on her return trip. Most of them will take up work in the grades and high schools immediately upon arriving.

The Chinese government is assuming all expenses of the undertaking and the students are under its direction.

W. J. BRYAN DREW LARGE AUDIENCE

AMERICAN ORATOR
DELIGHTED HEARERS

Interesting Address Given by Him Last Evening at Theatre.

The Victoria theatre was crowded to its capacity last evening by a very enthusiastic audience to listen to W. J. Bryan. Bryan delivered his lecture on "The Prince of Peace." R. B. McMicking, president of the Young Men's Christian Association, under whose auspices the lecture was given, occupied the chair and on the platform with him were many prominent citizens, including His Worship Mayor Hall, G. H. Barnard, M. P.; Ralph Smith, M. P.; John Oliver, M. P.; the new Liberal leader, C. C. Michener, Hon. Abraham Smith, U. S. senator; Revs. T. E. Holling, W. L. Clay and others.

Charles W. Bishop, B. A., western field secretary for colleges and educational institutions of the Y. M. C. A., was called upon to open the proceedings with a vocal solo and sang in splendid style, "The Lord is My Light." President McMicking in introducing the speaker of the evening took occasion to thank the citizens of Victoria on behalf of the Y. M. C. A. for their generous support in the matter of the recent building campaign and said that the presence of Mr. Bryan through the Dominion was to assist the various Y. M. C. A. institutions in the cities he visited.

Mr. Bryan made no apology for speaking on a religious theme. He said that while his time and thought had been given to the problems of government and would still be given to that subject, and while he made numerous political speeches and would continue to do so, he preferred making a religious speech. In politics it was necessary to convince a majority of the people to think as you think in order that your ideas might be carried into practice, and he naively added, it was astonishing how difficult this task appeared to be; but in religion if you could impress one heart and life with a higher aim the speech was a success. He hoped to be able to help some one to a stronger faith in God by his words as he delivered the address of the evening.

The lecturer then plunged right into his subject and as he laid the foundations for his faith in very beginnings of Bible history one could not help realizing the strength and virility of the man himself. In spite of years of strenuous political life he stood before the audience as a champion of Christian faith and was using his charms of oratory to strengthen the faith of his audience. It did not seem a stepping aside for one moment from his life's work, but rather one felt it to be the real conviction of the orator that this was part of his life as well as the other which had occupied so much of his time and attention. There he stood, the very ideal of a public speaker. Cool, collected, always master of himself and his audience; with the very simplest of language, the very choicest of words, that the youngest listener could understand; illustrations apt and frequent, the quiet humor flashing out once in a while to give relief to the tension of the moment; the persistent logic convincing men in spite of themselves, and above all the steady, clear faith in God and in the Christ about whom he was speaking. For one hour and a half Mr. Bryan held his audience in close attention and the applause and murmurs of approval were frequent. One could almost imagine that strange sound in a theatre—an occasional "Amen" would come from some deeply moved listener.

One needed to be present to see the strong face, with its gentle play of eyes and mouth, and to see the quiet simple gesture which emphasized the truth that was being given to the audience; or to hear the tones of the voice that also carried emphasis of the words spoken. After dealing with the theories of creation and saying that no theory which did not go back to the great Creator as the primal force could be accepted, Mr. Bryan went on to deal with the mysteries and miracles of human life. And here his illustrations were particularly apt. The growth of the wheat kernel, the change of the watermelon seed, into the ripened fruit with its different parts and colors, and then the change of life which comes from a trust in God were well used to show that mystery and marvel should not shatter faith in the Supreme Being. Dealing with the vicarious atonement the speaker showed how that man himself had been willing through all the ages to make sacrifice for his convictions, and for the sake of others. The men of the past had given to us the right of free speech, of free government, of the free press by reason of their sacrifice of life and all for the sake of the generations to follow. We are continually paying back that which we owe to those who have gone before by giving to those who are around us of who are to follow us of the best that is in us.

Mr. Bryan gave several reasons why he believed in the divinity of Christ. Argument followed argument in quick succession, and the faith of the speaker was seen behind his statements.

A HORSE IN A LAUNDRY.

New York, Oct. 14.—A horse attached to a laundry wagon became frightened and made a wild dash up Broadway. Spying a sign with a shirt on it, the horse plunged into the laundry, and, ridding itself of the wagon, landed with all four feet upon the lingerie and shirts that a dozen laundresses were sorting.

When the horse went through the door the laundresses went out the windows amid a shower of hot irons, starch and boiling bottles. When the excitement was over the horse was found calmly munching a bundle of laundry tickets.

"Fruit-a-tives," the famous fruit juice medicine, is giving wonderful results in all cases of weak and strained kidneys. "Fruit-a-tives" acts directly on the kidneys, relieving the inflammation, and at the same time regulating bowels, stomach and skin.

Some sentences could not be easily forgotten. For instance, "the human measure of life is its income, the divine measure of life is its outgo." Or this, "the unanswerable argument in favor of the Christian faith was a Christian life."

The tendency of the religious world to-day was to emphasize the first part of that verse which has been the "text" for all Christian teaching. "Christ came to bring life and immortality to light." The emphasis used to be put on immortality, how we might reach heaven; now it is put on life, how we may live to help our fellows. The word of Christ, "he that saveth his life shall lose it, and he that loseth his life for My sake, shall find it," were not the words of a fanatic, but were the epitome of history. The speaker finished with a peroration that spoke of optimism in regard to the eventual history of the Christian truth. He believed that if the need arose men would be found in those days to die for their faith in Christ.

A vote of thanks to the lecturer was moved by G. H. Barnard, M. P., and seconded by C. C. Michener and carried amid hearty and prolonged applause.

The Y. M. C. A. are to be most heartily congratulated upon the complete success of Mr. Bryan's visit. The weather was most favorable; "Victoria" looked her best in the glow of autumn tints, and with many gardens still carrying out the abundant blossoms of late summer, and the crowds that attended every function showed the appreciation of the citizens of the visit of such a noted man. "The silver-tongued orator" has made another conquest and will always be a welcome visitor to the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryan left last night on the midnight steamer for Vancouver.

SPAWNING GROUNDS ARE WELL SEED

John P. Babcock Has Returned
From Trip to Interior.

John P. Babcock, deputy commissioner of fisheries of British Columbia, has returned to the city after a visit to the spawning grounds. He has for the last two months been inspecting the spawning grounds of the Fraser river, including all of its great lake systems. He reports all the hatcheries full, and the national spawning grounds well seeded, and believes that there has been enough spawn cast this year to insure a big run in the next big year, 1913.

He says he inspected the spawning beds of the Fraser river, and its stream and lake tributaries. I visited every big lake tributary except Stuart and Fraser lakes, hunting spawning sockeye salmon. Just as I have done for the provincial government in each of the last nine seasons, in order to be in a position to make an approximate estimate of the extent to which the spawning beds have been seeded. I left the coast the first of August, and went directly to the head of the river and worked down. The first sockeye to enter the Fraser seek the extreme head waters, and they spawn earlier than those that enter later and seek the tributaries nearer the sea.

"As all interested persons know, the run of sockeye salmon to the Fraser river this year was late—very late. Commercially, the run did not assume importance until the last few days in July, and even in August did not come up to expectations. The pack on the Fraser up to August 25th was not much more than half that of four years ago—the last big year. The pack in American waters is stated to be equal to that of that year. The conditions favored them as they usually do, and there appears to have been no observance of the weekly closed time in their waters during the time the fish were running."

"There was a run on in our waters when the August 25th to September 1st closed season began, and I am told that sockeye were running in considerable numbers when the closed season was over, and that they continued to run for some time afterward. However disappointing the run may have been for the fishermen and the cannery, the conditions, certainly, favored the spawning grounds, the hatcheries and the Indians of the interior."

hatcheries and the Indians of the interior.

"The run to the spawning grounds was later than usual, as was to be expected from the delay in entering the lower river; but once the fish passed the fishing limits they went, as they generally do, to the lake section at the head of the river. To Bear, Quenne, Horseshoe, Chilco, Seton and Anderson, Shuswap and Adams, Harrison and Lillooet lakes the run was abundant. While the fish were not in the compact schools of former years, the run continued over a greater length of time than any season since 1901.

"I do not think the numbers which reached those great lakes this year equalled those of 1901, but to most sections the run appears to have equalled that of 1905, and to Quenne lake the run appeared to be greater even than in that year."

"All the hatcheries have had a successful season. They are all filled with eggs with the exception of the Harrison lake hatchery, and that big institution is being filled rapidly. They get their eggs from Morris creek and the Harrison river, and as the run there is always later than to any other point and is always more constant, that hatchery will, like the others, be filled to its capacity. All the hatcheries could have taken double the number of eggs they can handle. It has always been so in the big years."

"Not only are the hatcheries all filled to their capacity, but all the natural spawning beds have been seeded and the Indian smokehouses packed with sockeyes. In consequence of the seeding of the natural beds and the filling of the hatcheries the outlook for a good run in 1913 is excellent."

BY STEAMER ON THE MACKENZIE

INTERESTING TRIP ON GREAT NORTH STREAM

Hudson Bay Engineer Comes South to Spend the Winter.

Up in the Arctic Circle, on the Peel river, thirty miles from the point where it debouches into the Mackenzie river, and about one hundred and fifty miles from Herschel Island, lies Fort McPherson, the farthest point north touched by the steamers of the Hudson's Bay company. By the water route from Athabasca Landing, this village in the land of the midnight sun, for it is a village containing a population of about two hundred natives, is over two thousand miles distant from Edmonton.

On Monday there arrived in Edmonton after a straight month of travel from Fort Smith, a man who has made the three thousand mile trip from Fort Smith to Fort McPherson, and return once each summer for the last ten years. His name is Wm. Hay and his occupation is that of chief engineer on the Hudson's Bay steamer Mackenzie River. He comes to spend the winter south after an absence of nearly five years.

"We started on our annual trip this year on July 2nd," said Mr. Hay, in an interview with the Bulletin. "The sun, of course, was up all the time and travelling night and day we reached Fort McPherson on the eleventh of the month. It is not safe to stay at the Peel river any length of time because of the danger of shallow water. The river at its outlet is too shallow to permit of the passage of any boat larger than an Eskimo whaleboat. The river branches out past the Peel and empties by so many channels that none carry any depth of water."

"There were a great number of Eskimos at Fort McPherson when we were there in July. I counted thirty-five Eskimo whaleboats. These craft are about thirty feet long and are built in San Francisco, where they are purchased by the Eskimos who go south on the big whalers for the winter. The natives sail them very skillfully."

"The old Northern Eskimos who were to be found all along the coast at the mouth of the Mackenzie ten years ago are fast disappearing. Their place is being taken by another tribe, the Cogmolloche, who have worked their way over from the west coast of Alaska. The new-comers are much more intelligent than their predecessors. Many of them have been down to 'Frisko' and know something of the modern civilization. It is surprising the way they are taking to the white man's mode of life."

Mr. Hay made his first trip up the Mackenzie river in 1899, the year of the Klondike rush. He was then second engineer on the Hudson's Bay company's steamer Wapiti. That year the Wapiti carried ninety-seven passengers down the river.

The Mackenzie River, which now piles the waters of the great river, is a steel built steamer 143 feet in length, with a beam of 26 feet. She is a stern wheeler, built on the same general plan as the Northern Transportation company's steamer, Northern Sun. She is well set up and she needs to be. The Mackenzie river is a St. Lawrence in size. On one portion of the river there is a straight stretch of 60 miles, and the sea which a wind raises is more like that of a lake than a river. The steamer also has a most difficult passage to make across Great Slave Lake, a full 120 miles of open water. The storms on this inland sea are at times fiercely violent. The passenger fare from Fort Smith, which is at the northern boundary of the province of Alberta, to Fort McPherson and return is $215.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL SPEAKS AT WINNIPEG

Patriotic Address Before the Canadian Club Loudly Applauded.

Winnipeg, Oct. 14.—Pointed, practical and patriotic was the speech of His Excellency the Governor-General before an enthusiastic audience at the Canadian Club yesterday at Manitoba hall.

His speech, which was punctuated with the heartiest applause throughout, had running through it a touch of gentle humor. He referred good-naturedly to the criticism of the press for having at Calgary overstepped the constitutional limit by speaking on public topics. "What then can I talk about?" he jokingly asked.

His patriotic peroration, referring to the bonds of relationship between Canada and the Old Land, were enthusiastically received.

J. B. Mitchell, president of the club, presided. The hall was crowded with members, fully six hundred being present.

CITRUS GROWERS WILL FIGHT INCREASED RATES

Declare Southern Pacific
Freight Charges Are Exorbitant.

Yuma, Ariz., Oct. 14.—The orange and lemon growers of southern California have raised a fund of $50,000 to fight the Southern Pacific and other roads which, they say, are taking all their profits in exorbitant transportation rates.

Acting for the citrus growers in this fight, Senator Flint will, as soon as congress meets, introduce a bill prohibiting railroads from raising their rates without the consent of the interstate commerce commission.

"I believe I can secure the passage of this bill," said Flint. "Even if I can't, I believe the orange and lemon growers can beat the railroads in the courts."

"The matter has already been brought into court and we hope to get a restraining order of some sort prohibiting the recently increased rates from going into effect."

POWER OF THE HOUSE OF LORDS

POSITION OF SAME CLEARLY DEFINED

Points Made by Lord Lyndhurst in Speech Delivered Many Years Ago.

The arrogant claim which is now being prominently enunciated that the House of Lords cannot reject a money bill has no justification in the practice of the constitution, says the London Standard. When Mr. Asquith, at Birmingham, put forward the remarkable dictum that "rejection by the House of Lords is out of the question," he pledged his party to a policy for which there is no precedent in the political history of the country. It is interesting and important at this stage to recall a speech by Lord Lyndhurst, which he made in the House of Lords on May 21, 1860, on the second reading of the Paper Duty Repeal Bill. Lord Lyndhurst, one of the most eminent constitutional lawyers in the nineteenth century. He occupied the Woolsack for three periods, count of age. Lord Lyndhurst admitted that the House of Lords had—

"No right whatsoever to amend what is called a money bill. We have, moreover, no right whatsoever to originate a bill of that nature."

But he goes on to say:

"That principle does not apply to the rejection of money bills. I take leave to say that there is not an instance to be found in which the House of Commons has controverted our right to reject money bills. Over and over again, I repeat it, nothing can be found in the parliamentary journals or in any history of parliamentary proceedings to show that our right to reject money bills has been questioned."

The precedents usually quoted in favor of the new constitutional theory promulgated by the Prime Minister are the House of Commons resolution of 1871 and 1878. The resolution of 1871 runs as follows:

"That in all aids given to the King by the Commons the rate of tax ought not to be altered by the Lords."

The resolution of 1878, which has been even more frequently quoted in the present controversy, runs as follows:

"That all aids and supplies, and aids to His Majesty in parliament, are the sole gift of the Commons; and all bills for the granting of any such aids and supplies ought to begin with the Commons; and that it is the undoubted and sole right of the Commons to direct, limit, and appoint in such bills the ends, purposes, considerations, conditions, limitations, and qualifications, of such grants, which ought not to be changed or altered by the House of Lords."

It is upon these precedents, as Lord Lyndhurst laid down, that the House of Lords have no right to amend a money bill or to originate a money bill, and, by a curious kind of logic, the House conclude that they have, therefore, no right to reject a bill of that kind.

Right to Reject.

That such a conclusion is quite inadmissible is shown by Lord Lyndhurst to rest on precedents of the same period. Thus:

"In 1839—one of the best periods in our history—the Lords amended a money bill—a poll bill, I believe. The Commons disapproved, and desired a conference. In their reasons, which are stated with the utmost elaboration, with a kind of superabundance of words which seems to show that they meant to sweep everything into their net, they admit in the most unqualified manner to the power, but the right, the constitutional right, a right equal to that of the House of Commons, to reject money bills when they think proper, and when they think the interests of the country require it."

The House of Commons sent up their reasons for desiring a conference to the amendment of the Poll Bill by the Lords, and the House of Commons' statement contains the following important paragraphs:

"All money aids and taxes to be raised or charged upon the subjects in parliament are the gift and grant of the Commons—in parliament, and are always have been, and ought to be by the constitution and ancient course and laws of parliament, and by the ancient and undoubted rights of the Commons of England, the sole and entire gift, grant, and present of the Commons in parliament, and to be laid, raised, and paid, levied, and returned for the public service and use of the government; the Commons said direct, limit, and appoint, and modify the same, and the Lords are not to alter such gift, grant, limitation, appointment, or modification of the Commons in any part or circumstance."

"Or otherwise to interpose in such bills, than to pass or reject the same for the whole, without any alteration or amendment."

"As the Kings and Queens, by the laws and Constitutions of parliament, are to take all, or to leave all, in such gifts, grants, and presents from the Commons, and cannot take part and leave part, so are the Lords to pass all or reject all, without diminution or alteration."

He reminded the House of Lords of the language used by Lord Aberdeen in 1853, with regard to the Succession Duty Bill. On that occasion Lord Aberdeen said:

"Now your lordships cannot alter a title of this bill; not a particle. You may—and this you have a full right to—throw it out on the second reading. That is perfectly within your lordships' competence to do."

Not only has this right been frequently admitted, but Lord Lyndhurst went on to point out that it had actually been exercised, and money bills had been rejected within comparatively recent years on many occasions. Thus:

"In 1807 a bill came up to this House for continuing and granting certain duties on malt. It was rejected."

"In 1789 a bill was passed through the House of Commons, and came up to your lordships, for imposing a duty on cocoanuts. It was rejected on August 6th in that year. A similar bill was brought up in 1790, and again rejected."

Powers Often Exercised.

Cases occur also where the bills rejected had not imposed new taxation, but relief from taxation. In this case also the power of rejection by the House of Lords had been exercised as in the following instances:

"In the year 1790 a bill was passed through the Commons to relieve the coasting trade of Great Britain from stamps on certain documents, and abolishing bonds respecting the Isle of Man. This bill, which I believe had reference to smuggling, was rejected by your lordships, and there was not a murmur of complaint that I can find given a trace of."

"In 1805 a bill was sent to this House for abolishing certain fees payable to Custom House officers in England; that was a bill for relief from taxation, and it was rejected by your lordships, without complaint."

"In 1807 a similar step was taken with respect to a bill which proposed to abolish payments to custom house officers in Ireland, and no complaint followed."

"In 1808 a measure was carried through the Commons to repeal duties on coals carried coastwise in Wales, and grant others in lieu thereof. Here was a bill to remove and to impose taxation, embracing consequently both alternatives, and it likewise was rejected by your lordships."

Another example is that in which the House of Commons has initiated a bill to suspend duties for a period, and this also has, on occasions, been rejected by the Lords. Thus:

"In 1811 there was a bill passed by the other House to suspend for one year the duties on corn and for the distillation of spirits in England, and to permit the distillation of spirits from sugar. . . . After a long debate the bill was thrown out. Did Lord Liverpool—the minister of the day under whose authority the bill was introduced—did he make any complaint? Did the House of Commons make any complaint? Not a single syllable was uttered on the subject. So far from that, when a few days afterwards the Chancellor of the Exchequer brought in a bill to make amends for the loss of duties, he merely said: 'I introduce this bill in consequence of the rejection of a bill by the other House. Never was a subject more fully discussed than that was, and no complaint whatever was made by the Lower House.'"

Summarising the position as it then stood, Lord Lyndhurst laid down the constitutional rights of the Upper House as follows:

"If your lordships are satisfied, as you must be, that you have not only the power, but the constitutional right, to reject this bill, and if you are satisfied that there is an actual deficiency, that next year there must be a most enormous deficiency, and that the present state of Europe is such as to create continual anxiety, then I ask your lordships will you consent to give up, not for the present year only, but permanently, a sum of nearly a million and a half?"

LABOR ON G. T. P.

London, Oct. 14.—Interviewed by a representative of Canada Illustrated, Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, president of the Grand Trunk Railway, said that in regard to the position at the Prince Rupert end of the Grand Trunk Pacific everything practically hinged upon the supply of labor.

Personally, Sir Charles said he had never been able to appreciate the position of the people of British Columbia in this respect, as the early completion of the road was much to the province, and the temporary employment of three or four thousand Asiatics would save three years.

Their introduction would not displace a single native of Canada, as when their contracts ended they would be taken to the Oriental port from which they embarked.

MOUNTAIN CLIMBER IS CONGRATULATED

Rev. G. R. B. Kinney Receives Praise for Act From English Party.

"I think you are too late, gentlemen," were the words spoken by G. R. B. Kinney, who a few days previously had climbed Mount Robson, to a party of English climbers who were on their way to conquer the same snow-capped peak. The meeting took place some days ago at John Swift's homestead on the upper Athabasca. Mr. Kinney's words did not refer to the fact that he had been the conqueror of the highest peak in the Rockies, but to the improbability of the English party being able to make the ascent owing to the lateness of the season. The party of English climbers was composed as follows: Geoffrey Hastings, Bradford, A. L. Mumm, London; L. S. Amery of the London Times, his brother, Capt. H. Amery, and Mr. Mumm's Swiss guide, Moritz Inderbinnen. Mr. Hastings, Mr. Mumm and Inderbinnen, are all noted climbers, among their climbs being ascents of over 20,000 feet in the Himalayas. Mr. Hastings returned to the city recently on his way home.

Mr. Hastings said that his party had very bad luck as far as the weather was concerned. From Edmonton, which they left on August 28th, it had taken them seven days instead of four to drive in buggies to Wolf creek. That has been owing to the state of the trail, which practically all the way was a mass of mud. Moreover they had encountered more than one heavy rainstorm. From Wolf creek it had taken them seven days by ponies to reach the foot of Mount Robson. The going had been very bad. For much of the way it was a case of picking one's way through fallen timber. The first view of Mount Robson had been obtained from a point a few miles below the Yellowhead lake on the upper Fraser river. They had noted that in the McEvoy report to the Canadian government it was stated that Mount Robson was not visible from the upper Fraser valley, but as a matter of fact, it was visible over Rainbow mountain.

An ascent of Mount Robson had been attempted on September 17th. A feasible route had been discovered and but for unfavorable weather conditions the ascent would probably have been made. As it was, the party had got to a point within 1,200 feet of the summit, Mount Robson being 13,700 feet high. At that altitude the party had been surprised by a Chinook wind, an ominous sign. The Chinook, said Mr. Hastings, corresponded to the Föhn in Switzerland, a warm wind well known in the Swiss Alps. It was a cardinal principle of climbing in the Alps to desist from climbing during the Föhn, for not only were avalanches common, but ice also came down during the Föhn. The party had also encountered another ominous feature, the absence of frost on the glacier, which meant laborious mashing instead of quick progress over frozen snow. The decision to return had been arrived at about 2 o'clock in the afternoon. A storm had then been threatening and before the party could get off the glacier it had broken furiously. Night had also fallen before the glacier was left behind, so that if the party had not returned it would probably have been in a precarious position on the glacier.

Mr. Hastings was eloquent in his description of Mount Robson. It was a magnificent peak, the northerly face of which was a tremendous precipice. There was a great glacier on the mountain, which he understood was to be called Kinney glacier in honor of Mr. Kinney. The river which rose on the glacier, said Mr. Hastings, divided into two streams, one of which flowed into the north fork of the Fraser river, and so into the Pacific ocean; while the other stream flowed into the smoky river, thence into the "Ragee" river and so into the Arctic ocean. On the north side of the mountain there were two glacial lakes formed by the melting of the glacier. It was a scene of great beauty. Great blocks of ice were constantly breaking off the glacier's tongue, the crash being audible many miles away. The great glacier on Mount Robson was fed by smaller glaciers from the south, west and east.

Mr. Hastings thinks that if his party could have arrived at the base of Mount Robson 24 hours earlier, it would have been able to have made the ascent. Mr. Kinney's apprehension that the party was too late had, however, been justified. Speaking of Mr. Kinney, Mr. Hastings said that he thoroughly deserved his success and that he had been heartily congratulated by the British climbers. Mr. Kinney was undoubtedly a plucky fellow, as his persistent attempts fully proved. Their conversation with Mr. Kinney when they met him at the Swift homestead, had only been brief, as Mr. Kinney had just forded the upper Athabasca and was anxious to push on. The news of his successful ascent they had heard 24 hours previously, as it had spread very quickly along the trail. All of the party had enjoyed the trip immensely, although none would care to repeat the laborious trip from Wolf creek to the mountain. The absence of maps of the region had made the trip difficult. A stop of three days had been made to ascertain whether a certain river flowed from the Mount Robson glacier or from another glacial basin. They had found that it did not flow from Mount Robson, and thus three days had been lost.

AN "AT HOME" IN HONOR OF MR. BRYAN

Pleasing Function Yesterday at Residence of David Spencer.

Not the least pleasant feature of the visit to Victoria yesterday of William Jennings Bryan, the famous Democratic leader, was the "at home" arranged in honor of the distinguished guest and Mrs. Bryan at Lan Dderwen, the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Spencer. Opportunity was given a large number of Victorians to greet Mr. and Mrs. Bryan under the most pleasant circumstances, and the occasion was made memorable by a neat speech from the famous orator.

W. Spencer acted as host, as Mrs. Spencer was assisted in entertaining by her daughter, Mrs. Grant. R. B. McKinnon presided.

In introducing Mr. Bryan, Mr. Sawyer, field secretary for the Y. M. C. A., under whose auspices Mr. Bryan is lecturing on his present tour, alluded to the work done in Victoria in raising the funds for the new building. In this splendid achievement the capital of British Columbia had set a pace for the whole of the Dominion to follow.

Mr. Bryan, in the course of a pleasant speech, said that on his way across the continent he had been shown a chart and was told that when a certain line had been crossed he would find himself in British territory. But he had been unable to tell when he had crossed this imaginary boundary line, for the people whom he met were to all intents and purposes the same as those in his own country. He could not tell the difference. For instance, his friend Consul Smith looked just as if he might be a prosperous Canadian. There was, however, a difference to be noted between the east and west on the continent of America. He spoke in praise of the people of the Western States, and hoped he would soon be as familiar with the people of Western Canada as he was with those of the section where he lived. Though there was a great tariff wall between Canada and the United States, there was a free exchange of ideas, and this worked to the betterment of the two nations. The idea for the establishment of the Y. M. C. A. had been borrowed from England. From this organization had grown the Christian Endeavor, the Epworth League and kindred societies. The Y. M. C. A. was a society which worked solely for the good of others, and should receive every assistance, as it was aiming to make the world a better place to live in.

A number of those present questioned Mr. Bryan as to the best way of assisting the great Christian movement, and he gave them much valuable advice. In the course of an impromptu talk which followed, the prominent part which men are taking in church work was alluded to as a hopeful sign of the times. Refreshments were served by the Misses Spencer in the dining room, which had been prettily decorated for the occasion.

DOCTORS CONDEMN OILY LINIMENTS

The Public Are Warned to Be Careful of These Strong-smelling Oily Liniments, Containing Harmful Acids, Ammonia, Etc.

Many people have clung to the old-fashioned idea that a thick, greasy liniment is the best kind. Doctors say not—and they know.

Recently a number of these white, oily liniments were analyzed, and they were found to contain an enormous high percentage of harmful acids, and such irritating chemicals as ammonia, etc.

For the moment they may cause a warm sensation when first applied, but their continued use never cures rheumatism, and only deteriorates the skin, sets up inflammation and causes endless trouble.

When a doctor warns you to quit using a white, oily liniment—do so. He knows that a thick liniment can't penetrate, can't sink through the pores and reach the seat of the pain.

When asked his opinion a few days ago, Dr. Roberts stated that he considered a strong, penetrating, pain-subduing liniment, such as "Nerviline," to be superior to any of the white-ammonia liniments. In his twenty-five years of practice he had witnessed cases of rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago that simply would not respond to ordinary treatment—but "Nerviline" cured them. The same physician spoke of the great advantages of keeping a preparation like "Nerviline" in the house always, because of cramps, diarrhoea, stomach disorders, earache, toothache, headache and such minor ailments. "Nerviline" is a first-class cure. There is scarcely an ache or a pain, internal or external, that "Nerviline" won't cure. In thousands of homes no other pain-relieving medicine is used. Fifty years' continued success and the endorsement of the profession are proof that "Nerviline" is the liniment for the home.

Any good drugist or dealer can supply the large 25c. bottles of "Nerviline."

"RAGGED ROBIN."

Chauncey Olcott will be seen in Celtic Romance Next Monday.

Chauncey Olcott in "Ragged Robin," a romance of the south of Ireland in 1850, will be the attraction at Victoria theatre on Monday next. The play has much interest for students of the Celtic folklore, as it introduces many delightful bits of fairy superstition incidental to the primary story. It is the first time that American authors have essayed to write a thoroughly Celtic theme and that they have succeeded well in their first effort, is evidenced by the fact that "Ragged Robin" has been winning unstinted praise from admirers of William Butler Yeats, George Russell, Fiona Macleod and the other famous writers of modern Celtic literature. There is all that wild poetic atmosphere in it that lends such a charm to this school of writing, and yet the story of the lovers is so human that it brings the audience close to the characters. Mr. Augustus Pitou has given his entire personal attention to the staging of "Ragged Robin," and this fact is a sufficient guarantee that the production is one well worth seeing.

NEW GRAND THEATRE

Howard Mismer having played in many parts in many cities is this week charming Victoria audiences with his clever character, "Mister Stranger," in a playlet of that name at the New Grand theatre, where he presents so exact and realistic a production that it calls for general applause. "Mister Stranger" tells the story of a young man who has grown very old at the age of twenty-seven. This young man is visited on his wedding eve by the fantastic stranger whose original advice the youth desiring to escape the marriage, follows. A unique situation is developed until the conclusion where a laughable denouement occurs.

The La Bakans with the little toyed dog act that gets continuous applause every time the little dog has anything to do on the stage. The part of the act by the two men is very clever acrobatic work, the ability of the heavier being remarkable.

Edna Davenport and Dick and Alice McEvoy put on a couple of enjoyable turns that take well. The singing of Miss Davenport is good and the other turn is a clever one that makes the two performers favorites with the public. Thomas J. Price sings "Honey Boy," and the motion pictures this week are good. There is a matinee performance every afternoon and two shows given every night; one at 7:45 and the other at 9:15.

GREAT ATTRACTION APPEARS HERE TO-NIGHT

The "Three Twins" Has Splendid Reputation as Musical Comedy.

The "Three Twins," which comes to the Victoria theatre to-night is essentially a laugh-promoter, and yet that is far from the best part of it, for the novelty staging, and the songs are splendid. The "Cuddle Up a Little Closes Lovey Mine," with its even ages of cuddling, is the most pathetic stage picture ever produced.

The Yama Yama song, which created such a sensation in New York at the Herald Square theatre, is another one of the many song hits; in fact, there are so many good things in "Three Twins" that it would require too much space to describe them all.

Of the many novel effects the most important are the dancing Yama Yama chairs, the faceograph, and the electric aerial swing. This swing is the latest electrical effect ever staged, and weighs four thousand pounds, and is illuminated with two thousand electric lights and revolves around at a rapid rate with six beautiful show girls in the baskets singing the "Cuddle Song," which presents a gorgeous spectacle.

This musical comedy has created a sensation in both Chicago and New York, and comes to us with the endorsement of a metropolitan success. "Three Twins" had a run of five months at the Whitney in Chicago, and one year at the Herald Square in New York, where the S. R. O. sign was displayed nightly. The "Three Twins" is said to be the best musical offering of the season.

CLEANING OLD LACE

Old lace should never be cleaned with gasoline, as it will take the natural oil out of the lace threads. Being a vegetable product, it is rendered very crisp, stiff and liable to snap. The lace should first be allowed to soak in cold water, to which can be added a small pinch of borax. This should be then thoroughly rinsed out to prevent its rotting the delicate fabric. When the lace is very valuable it should be basted to old linen to keep it from stretching, and it should be taken out of the sun as soon as dry. In washing an Irish lace collar it should always be pressed while it is lying right side downward upon a Turkish towel four times folded. This makes a soft surface, and when the lace is pressed it will have none of the shiny effect that ironed laces gradually acquire. Before washing any lace all of the holes should be carefully mended with No. 120 cotton thread.

The value of tissue paper can hardly be underestimated when it comes to packing things, especially in a trunk. The shoes, hair brushes and many other useful articles can be wrapped in tissue paper, and kept from rubbing against each other. The paper takes very little room and acts in the same way as cotton. Dainty gloves and neckwear should be wrapped in this manner.

JUST A FEW DOSES END BLADDER MISERY AND MAKE THE KIDNEYS ACT FINE AGAIN

Out-of-order Kidneys Will Be Regulated and Backache
Vanishes.

Usually sufferers from backache, bladder trouble or out-of-order kidneys, feel relieved after several doses of Pape's Diuretic.

Misery in the back, sides or loins, sick headache, inflamed or swollen eyes, nervousness, rheumatism, and darting pains, heart palpitations, dizziness, sleeplessness, listless, worn-out feeling and other symptoms of inactive, sluggish kidneys simply vanish.

Uncontrollable urination (especially at night) smarting, discolored water and all bladder misery ends. Feeling miserable and worried is needless because this unusual preparation goes at once to the out-of-order kidneys and bladder, distributing its cleansing, healing and vitalizing influence directly upon the organs and glands affected, and completes the cure before you realize it. The moment you suspect any kidney or urinary derangement, or feel rheumatic pains, begin taking this harmless medicine, with the knowledge that there is no other remedy, at any price, made anywhere else in the world, which will effect so thorough and prompt a cure as a fifty-cent treatment of Pape's Diuretic, which any druggist, pharmacist, or any mercantile agency will tell you that Pape, Thompson & Pape, of Cincinnati, is a large and responsible medicine concern, thoroughly worthy of your confidence.

Only curative results can come from taking Pape's Diuretic, and a few days' treatment will make any one feel fine. Accept only Pape's Diuretic—fifty-cent treatment—from any drug store—anywhere in the world.

CO-OPERATION WITH EMPLOYEES

W. H. LEVER'S ADDRESS
BEFORE HIS WORKMEN

Head of Sunlight Soap Company Sets Example in Business.

Lever Brothers, Limited, the proprietors of Sunlight soap, have been trying to solve the problem of satisfactory relations between employer and employee. The village of Port Sunlight was built at an expense to the firm of between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000, and was simply for the purpose of improving the conditions under which their employees live, and is without any direct financial return to Lever Brothers, Limited, whatsoever.

They have also adopted a system of pensioning their employees when they are no longer able to work or when they reach the age of sixty or sixty-five.

Recently W. H. Lever set aside $2,500,000 of stock to be given to the various employees of Lever Brothers, Limited. The first distribution of this stock took place on the 23rd of July, 1909. A few days ago this was explained at length in these columns. At the time when the stock was distributed Mr. Lever made the following speech:

You may have felt you were waiting a long time for these certificates, but when you know the enormous amount of detail there has been in looking up the records and periods of each of you, you must agree with me in complimenting everyone concerned for the speed and facility with which this has been carried through. It really creates a record when you consider 1,041 references had to be made and carefully searched through, and so on. I spent my own Whitstable holidays at Port Sunlight doing my part of the work, and I am very happy in spending my time in that way (applause). Although there has been this delay in distributing the certificates, it has not prejudiced the recipients in any way, because dividends may be payable at the end of this year will rank as from January last (applause), so that your dividends have been growing since January last. I want to impress upon you this important fact, that no man has the power or any combination of men have the power to take the certificates from you that you have received to-night. It can only be by your own act you can lose them. Neither myself nor the trustees, nor any member of the committee have the power to take these from you. It can only be by your breaking the conditions on which you have received them. The only power we have got is with reference to next year's issue of certificates, and I hope next year we may be in a position not only to give additional certificates to everyone in this room, but include a large number of new members who have been growing since January last, and which will be issued in the spring some time of next year. That is the only power we have got with regard to the future issue of certificates. Those you have received I want to impress on you are yours absolutely, and nothing can take them from you (loud cheers and applause). As far as we share in the profits of this business, whatever one of you partners stand equal with myself. If you wish to buy preference shares so that you may have 5 per cent. on capital you may do so. In buying ordinary shares I had to pay a very large premium—more than 100 per cent., whereas you will be able to buy preference shares at a small premium, and you will then stand equal to myself. We now form one vast united army (hear, hear), and the future success of this business rests with us. I believe that the surest way to success is the shortest way to the savings bank. Therefore I propose when the dividends are paid at the end of the year—I believe we shall be able to pay 10 per cent. on our ordinary shares, which will make 5 per cent. on the partnership certificates—to open a bank and each of you partners will receive a bank book and enter into that bank book to your credit the amount of the dividend which is payable to you. You will be at liberty if you wish to draw it out immediately. You will also be able if you wish to leave it in the bank to accumulate so that you will purchase shares in the business. When you ask for it out of interest will be paid on the deposit. If you leave it in subject to withdrawal at one month's notice 2½ per cent. interest will be paid on the amount for three months 4 per cent. With this you will be able to buy 5 per cent. preference shares at whatever the market price for them is. Before I pass on I would like to thank Mr. Harley for the skill and ability he has shown in getting into legal phraseology this very difficult and complex system of partnership. It has been done and thoroughly done, and to Mr. Harley who has acted as solicitor we feel deeply indebted. I feel as we all meet here to-night as partners that perhaps a word or two from me away from the scheme altogether, would be appreciated by you. I venture to assert, partners, that the business of the world and the business of life is the best of all worlds and the best of lives to live. A business life is full of activity. It fills our lives, and without lives filled up with aims and ambitions and objects to be striven for, our life would be miserable indeed. You know Emerson stated that an institution was but the length and shadow of a man, and if this institution of partnerships includes so many men as it does, then it naturally follows that this business will be the length and shadow of each one of you composing the partnership. I would like to put this point to you, that those getting the most out of it should put the most into it (hear, hear). That is exactly like the savings bank. Unless you put into it continually you will have very little to draw out of it. Another point I want to mention is this. The success of a business depends absolutely on the strength of every individual connected with it. We cannot be strong because there may be one or two capable men; we can only be strong because every one of you are strong. Equally so the weakness of a business is combined weakness exaggerated and accentuated and I hope we may always be spared from having among us anyone lacking in their desire to do their very best, stimulated with ambition and a love of their undertaking, and wishing to put their very best into it. What is success in business? Some think success means discovering something or doing something that no one else has ever done. There is that kind of success, but the more usual form of success, and the one within the reach of every one of us is to be better than anyone else has done in the work we have undertaken. What does success depend on? It depends on health, long life, and money. If we have to work hard for a business we must have good health, and the result will be a long life, and equally certain there will be profits made. I want that which appertains to each of us to be the characteristics of this institution of partnership. We want this institution to have good health, long life, and to make good money for the partners. Remember the experiment we are trying is one that in other forms has been tried in many parts of the world, and the average duration of a partnership scheme hitherto has only been five years. There has been no cohesion. They have gone along smoothly when there have been profits to divide, but as soon as profits have ceased to exist the system has from that time been condemned and abandoned, and the ordinary payment of wages for services has been fallen back upon. We are trying to work that system on a better basis. I want this institution to have good health that it may enjoy long life, and it may achieve the third essential of success, which is profits. How must we achieve this? In my opinion the first essential is commencing with the boy—the boys in our schools, the children of every one of you, and if we can make these children ambitious you may depend upon it the men and women of to-morrow will be the same. Don't believe for a moment that success is built on failures. It is an absolute fallacy since it is only built on well-made and well-matured plans, well thought out and carefully executed. And so far from "If you don't succeed try, try again" being literally true, it should be substituted for "If at first you don't succeed, try a better method" (applause). And as we are endeavoring to get away from the old rule I hope our institution will prove a great success not only to you in this room but to thousands of people throughout the length and breadth of the land in other countries to which this system may be extended. Since speeches were made in this hall at the end of February last, we have had applications for these just deeds from almost every country in the world, especially from the United States. Therefore, these people are all watching the success you make of this partnership scheme. You cannot do a greater dis-service to the cause of partnership and the wage-earner than to leave those in doubt as to the success or failure of this scheme. Well, now, I want to speak to you about the claims of justice which a business of a business are viewed as merely so much cash for spending and enjoyment. Profits are an absolute essential to a healthy business. The business that has ceased to make profit has ceased to maintain its position in the ranks of other businesses. One of the claims of justice which a business makes can only be made by the profits that the business creates itself, and one of the essentials of success in business is that profits should be made. I know there is an impression sometimes that profits are made merely on so much per cent. on capital. Five per cent. is considered small, ten per cent. liberal, and so on, but underlying all this is the basic principle of the success of the undertaking, and it is not a matter which can be treated lightly in any way, for the moment the business ceases to be profit-earning it ceases to be a factor in the business of the world. I have mentioned about the boy being rightly trained so that the man will be found efficient and the business will be a success, but do not be under any misapprehension. Those of you who enjoy the position of managers will from time to time have to select from various positions the young men who are showing ability. I do not want you to quarrel over one class of man merely because he is not quite suited for the kind of work he is in. It is your business to find out what that man is suited for (loud applause). I should consider you just as logical if you were to quarrel with the flowers in your garden because they are not quite as good as watch dogs (laughter). Your success will be marked in the way in which you select the various men for the several positions. Remember that every man has his particular faculty and a particular ability, and that every man was intended to fill some niche in life, and that you must not discard him altogether because he does not seem suited for one particular kind of work (applause). I believe that with proper handling, especially if we commence with the young, human nature is inherently right and sound, and it is only a question of using our judgment rightly to bring the best out of our fellow men. It is a fact that institutions do become weak, colorless, inefficient and unsuccessful when the men who compose that institution are lacking in vitality, in positiveness, forcefulness, energy and all the other attributes which make for a successful business. We shall just as assuredly decay if we ourselves are not to the forefront as to-morrow morning's daylight will come. We have to bear this fact steadily in mind that one of the greatest factors governing the success of a business of this kind lies in achieving control of ourselves. I believe firmly that the man or woman who control themselves have gained three-quarters of the road towards the control of their fellow men and fellow women. The men who cannot think for themselves and cannot look ahead and see the consequences of certain acts are very little lifted above the brute creation. The Divine faculty that is given us is the power of thinking and looking ahead. It is not possessed by the lower creations, and if we do not exercise it to the full we undoubtedly pay the penalty. I want you therefore to be earnest and sincere in all this, and when I talk of money being necessary to the success of a business I want you to realize that it is absolutely the bed-rock basis upon which business rests. If you ask me what is the great objects in life I tell you it is happiness (loud applause). And if we think we shall achieve happiness by merely searching for money and making dividends as high as we possibly can, I tell you that method of finding happiness would be exactly as if we sat astride the branch of a tree over a precipice and commenced to saw the branch off. The obvious result would be that we would be sent into the river below, and if we, in looking for happiness, entertained the idea that money is merely the necessary element we would suffer a similar fate. But if we consider it as an important element in success and we view it from that position which it justly occupies, then ultimate success will be ours. It is only on these lines that this business can be made successful, and I venture to suggest that if we give a life directly to the happiness of others we shall have achieved the true happiness to which every man should aspire (loud cheers).

A BOON TO MOTHERS.

When Children Are Injured.

Children are always sustaining cuts, bruises, burns, etc., and not infrequently contract ringworm, scalp diseases, and similar skin troubles at school. Mothers will find Zam-Buk without equal for all these accidents and diseases.

Mrs. Thomas Allen, 156 Water Street, St. Mary's (Ont.), says:—"My daughter Mildred, 4 years old, was severely burned by falling on a hot flat iron. She was burned on the heel, instep, and on the thigh very badly. I at once applied some Zam-Buk, which eased the pain, and in the course of a few days the wounds were thoroughly healed."

Mrs. George Aldridge, 12 Louise Street, Stratford, says:—"While playing barefooted about the yard my son Bertram, 6 years old, stepped on a broken glass bottle, which cut very deeply into his big toe. The cut was so deep that I sent for a doctor and had the foot properly dressed, the doctor leaving a lotion to be applied daily. Under this treatment, however, the wound seemed to get no better, but on the contrary inflammation set in. A kindly neighbor then recommended Zam-Buk. We obtained a supply, and after a few applications the child seemed to rest better, and the pain was very much reduced. In a few days, under the Zam-Buk treatment, the wound assumed a better appearance, and from that time healing was very rapid. Inflammation and soreness were finally completely banished, and in ten days from the first application of Zam-Buk we took the bandages from the foot. I feel sure that but for Zam-Buk the child would have had a very bad time, and might have had to sacrifice the toe."

Not only for cuts, burns, bruises, etc., is Zam-Buk effective, but also for serious skin diseases such as eczema, ringworm, ulcers, etc. It also cures poisoned sores, chronic wounds, bad leg, blisters, festering sores, and hemorrhoids, cold sores, frost-bite, and all skin injuries and diseases. Druggists and stores everywhere sell at 50c a box, or post free for price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto; 3 boxes $1.25. You are warned against harmful imitations sometimes represented to be "just as good."

SEEKS TO SECURE

FRANCHISE FOR WOMEN

Objects of Equal Franchise Society—Mrs. C. Mack-ay's Statement.

New York, Oct. 14.—Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay having been asked to define the purposes and the position of the "Equal Franchise Society," of which she is the president, has given out the following statement for publication:

"The purpose of the Equal Franchise Society is to promote the welfare of women by securing the national 'ate and local electoral franchise for women, because the Equal Franchise Society believes in the political and civil equality of men and women. The electorate should represent the whole nation, and a system of government under which one-half of the nation are disfranchised is not a true representative national system."

"We are inviting people to become members of our society in order to contribute to the advancement of public education by the promotion of the cause. We feel that in order to secure the enfranchisement of women it is not necessary for us to imitate the methods which are being used in other countries. American manhood has always treated American womanhood in such a way as to make us feel that we shall ultimately achieve our aim without sensationalism. I will not endorse militant methods."

"It has been repeatedly said to me by men in public life and men in private life that when the women of the United States unite in demanding the vote they will get it and I think that it is perfectly true that what is needed to further the suffrage cause is to give all sorts and kinds of women the opportunity of listening to speakers who will explain just what the suffrage will mean to us all. Most of the men I have met are apparently willing to co-operate with us, and have listened to what we have said with courtesy and consideration. It has not seemed necessary in the past, and I do not think it will be necessary in the future, for us to get out to the street corners and shriek our propaganda at the passerby. We have but to plead our cause without raising our voices to these men and women who are not with us."

"We can always assume that they are not wilfully ignorant of what woman suffrage should mean. We want them to appreciate the fact that throughout this country the strongest suffragists are those women who devote their best energies towards the development of their condition in order to make them citizens worthy of our great country."

"We do not think that as an organization we have a right to demand an expression of opinion from the candidates in this coming election. We prefer to leave politics alone until our share the responsibilities with the other sex. I feel that the main reason for suffrage is community of interest between the sexes."

"It is not in any sense a fight for rights, but the logical evolution of justice. The Equal Franchise Society wishes to establish a platform upon which such speakers as Bishop McVicar, of Rhode Island, Everett Colby, and perhaps Martin W. Littleton will express their belief in suffrage, and for that reason we have leased the Garden theatre and arranged our course. We wish to enlist that part of the community regardless of sex, or creed, who will co-operate with us because of their loyalty to their country."

"Among the most recent additions to our membership are such women as Mrs. William Schefflin, Mrs. Milford Warner, Mrs. Richard Steven, Mrs. Walter Maynard, Miss Spence, Mrs. Paul Morton, Miss Elizabeth Burghenal, Miss Dorothy Whitney and many others, as can be seen on our list."

TEACHING ORIENTAL

LANGUAGES IN ENGLAND

Interesting Debate in House of Lords—Lord Curzon's Views.

During a recent session of the House of Lords, Lord Redesdale asked the secretary for India what steps had been taken towards giving effect to the recommendations of the committee appointed by the government to inquire into the possibility of affording better means of instruction in Oriental languages in connection with London University and King's College, but their combined salaries amounted to only £1,200 a year. The committee which had inquired into this matter believed that the sum required to properly equip a school of Oriental studies in London would be something over £12,000 a year.

The Earl of Cromer hoped the government would give a sympathetic hearing to the strong case that had been made out by the noble lord for doing something to promote the study of Oriental languages in London. He hoped the college, if established, would teach something of Oriental history, religion, manners, and customs as well as languages.

Viscount Morley, Secretary for India, said that the country owed a very great debt to the committee who had inquired into this question. Their report was rather ambitious, and he doubted whether any government would accept and carry out all their recommendations. The question confronting them was where the necessary £12,750 a year was to be procured in order that effect might be given to the proposal. He sympathized with the demand that a school of this kind should be established for the sake of our national honor and credit, as well as from consideration of policy. He did not think the demand of the committee was unreasonable. If Germany found that her interests warranted an expenditure of $10,000 a year, and France considered her interests warranted an expenditure of £7,000 a year for similar objects, when we considered the enormous preponderance of our interests in the east over either of those two great countries we should be warranted in expending many, many times more than either of those two great countries spent in this way. Although he was not yet able to name the specific sum which the government would contribute, it would certainly not be less than a quarter of the sum demanded by the committee, and it might be more. The government would submit proposals on this subject to the House of Commons—if it still retained its financial control (a laugh).

"The government contribution, even when added to the contributions which the committee expected from the University of London and the revenues of India, would not be enough if it was desired to make this a great institution, and it would be necessary to persuade the great mercantile bodies in London, Manchester, and elsewhere what an interest they had in the establishment of such a source of education. He agreed with Lord Cromer that such a school when founded ought not to be merely a school of language, but ought also to be a school where one could study the history, habits, customs, and religions, and all that gave character and tone to Oriental languages. When the school had been established he hoped it would have its home in London, and would have entire control over its own educational scheme and funds. Those interested in the subject would be invited to constitute themselves an executive committee to collect funds and draw up an outline of the relation between the proposed school and existing institutions.

Lord Curzon of Kedleston thought that this was certainly a matter where the British taxpayers ought to be expected to find the small sum required. He expressed the hope that the Indian secretary would use his influence to get at least £4000 a year as a government grant. He appreciated the importance which this subject possessed to the commercial bodies and he hoped they would support the movement; but he insisted that, after all, the Imperial interest was predominant. Speaking from his own experience in India, he said the best district officers were those who had the best knowledge of the native language; and he believed that the Viceroy would be all the better for a knowledge of the vernacular. Indeed, if he had known when he went to India that he was going to stop for seven years he would have spent the earlier months of his residence there in getting some knowledge of the native tongue. The outlook was a very serious one. It was upon the contentment of the army that, if an emergency arose, our position in India would be the main depend; and, therefore, any measure by which the officer could get to know his men better and win his way to their hearts would be of immense importance.

WIRELESS STATIONS RUN ECONOMICALLY

Cost in England Nearly Twice
That on this Coast.

Information is just at hand of the cost of maintaining a wireless station in England, and this compares very favorably with the cost of the same on this coast. The Dominion government is most economical in the running of its stations for they cost very little more than half the amount that is expended on the English stations where all supplies are cheaper than here.

The cost of installing in England is practically the same as here. A station such as those built by the government on this coast costs $10,000 and that is the price paid by the government. In maintenance, however, the cost in England is £750 per annum, or $2,750. The cost of maintaining the Cape Lazo station last year was $1,700, and the other stations average about the same, none going higher than $2,000. In this country the price of coal and of all supplies is higher than in England and wages are generally supposed to be higher. The only inference is that the Dominion government is extremely economical.

ENCOUNTERED GALES IN MAGELLAN STRAIT

Steamer Camphill Arrives at San Francisco From Baltimore.

Experiencing a series of fierce gales which rendered her passage through the Strait of Magellan exceedingly dangerous, the British steamer Camphill has arrived at San Francisco, 70 days from Baltimore, with a cargo of coal for the U. S. government. Battered by a hurricane, the Camphill was forced to leave the Strait of Magellan until the winds abated. She has a cargo of 4,573 tons of coal for Mare Island. The Camphill has been chartered while en route to proceed to Eureka and Puget Sound for lumber to Australia. She is fixed on time charter to J. J. Moore & Co.

On her present voyage the Camphill made a quick and uneventful passage from Baltimore to the eastern entrance of the strait, when high westerly winds sprang up. As the Camphill steamed into the strait, the wind velocity increased and before she had gone many miles it was blowing a hurricane. The Camphill was forced to drop anchor on September 4th, a few hours after she entered the strait. After twelve hours, when the hurricane abated somewhat, Capt. Moodie made an attempt to proceed. But when the anchor was pulled in the freighter was thrown to the mercy of the winds and became almost uncontrollable in the narrow, tortuous channel, and he was compelled to cast anchor again. A third attempt was unsuccessful, for after the steamer had gone a few miles the danger was too great, and anchor had to be dropped for the third time. Finally, on September 6th, the winds abated and the steamer was enabled to proceed slowly. The western entrance of the strait was made on September 7th. The trip north was clear and uneventful.

MONTEAGLE IN FROM ORIENT

ARRIVES WITH SHINANO MARU

Valuable Cargoes on Both
Steamers—Bad Head
Winds.

Within an hour of each other the two steamers, Montague of the C. P. R. and Shinano Maru, of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, arrived in port early this afternoon. They started from Yokohama at about the same time, the officers of each steamer claiming that the other was first in leaving. Twice they passed each other on the voyage, but both were very slow owing to the very severe head winds and seas.

The Montague brought 6,500 tons of cargo, including 1,700 bales of silk, the value of which will approach very nearly a million dollars. There was also a very valuable lot of tea, curios and Chinese goods. A number of Siamese bear pelts were taken at Shanghai.

Of the 108 passengers there were 42 Europeans in the saloon, 1 Japanese and 2 Chinese. The second and third class were all Orientals, less than 30 of whom were for Canada. Capt. Haley, who went out on the India, was in command, this being his first voyage on the vessel, and Dr. Hurt, formerly of Toronto but now of Vancouver, B. C., was in the place of Dr. Cowan.

The Shinano Maru brought nearly one hundred passengers, including Japanese, Chinese, Indians, Russians, Philipinos, Americans and Canadians. Her cargo, 3,500 tons in all, consisted of matted, a small consignment of silk and other general merchandise. Of this 35 tons will be discharged here.

News brought from the Orient by the Montague indicate that there have been serious typhoons and storms along the Chinese coast. At Formosa the typhoon was very severely felt, and the immense downpour of rain made the streams overflow their banks so that much of the country was flooded. Cable communication has been cut off between Shanghai and Hongkong, and there is a good deal of speculation as to the amount of damage that has been done.

The Chinese government has taken decided steps to suppress the boycott movement against the Japanese in that country. The newspapers have been given an intimation that they will be suppressed if they advise their readers to use the boycott, and one newspaper at least has already been suppressed, and many of the merchants are taking steps to prevent the movement spreading. It is recognized by many Chinese that while the boycott may be quite successful, the Chinese themselves must suffer considerably in carrying it out. The victory of Manchuria is ascribed by the Japanese of taking no steps to prevent the spread of the movement in his province, in spite of the fact that repeated representations have been made to him by the Japanese foreign office.

Fair Closes Saturday and McGaffey Goes to Fetch Exhibits.

The Seattle fair closes on Saturday night, and in order that Victorians may have an opportunity to take a last look at the exhibits a special two-dollar return rate between this city and Seattle has been inaugurated for the week. These tickets are good to return as late as Monday next.

Secretary McGaffey of the Vancouver Island Development Association is leaving for Seattle this afternoon to arrange for the packing up of the Vancouver Island exhibit. He will bring some of it back to Victoria and some will be disposed of in Seattle.

NO CENSURE FOR LIGHT KEEPER

Left Post for Two Days to Bury Wife in Christian Manner.

Lighthouse Keeper J. Reagan, of St. Marys Island, Southeastern Alaska, who was complained of to the light-house inspector for leaving his post a month ago with the result that the beacon was not lighted for two nights, has been absolved from blame. Reagan and his wife, both young, were the only persons on the barren island. The woman took sick and Reagan nursed her as well as he could until she died. There was no way of communicating with the mainland. The husband might have buried the body in the sand, but the thought was repellant. He put the body in a dingy and rowed 22 miles to Ketchikan. Two days passed before another man could reach the island and in the meantime a passing steamer had found the light not burning and had made a report.

With the body lying at his feet and the forsaken lighthouse constantly before his eyes, the long row from the island nearly wrecked Reagan's reason and he was in a state of complete exhaustion when he reached Ketchikan. He reported promptly to his superiors and a substitute was sent to take charge of the light.

In commenting upon the case Inspector Elliott said: "I am unable to censure the man under the circumstances. The distressing incident was one of those things which fortunately seldom happen, but which are liable at any time to occur at these isolated stations. It emphasizes the need of small gasoline launches at such stations, the adoption of which I shall strenuously urge."

HAND TO HAND FIGHT.

Fighting with knives and clubs, the Malay and Lascar contingents of the crew of the oil tanker Cowrie, which has just arrived at San Francisco, participated in a terrific encounter while the vessel was at sea, resulting in injuries to several of the antagonists.

The Cowrie's sailors were Lascars, while the fireroom force were Malays. Trouble had been brewing for several days between the two races, when one night the officers of the ship were aroused to find them engaged in a bloody battle on the tankers deck. With gleaming blades the Malays and Lascars, stripped to the waist, and presenting a frightful appearance, rushed upon one another. Two of the Lascars and one Malay were badly battered and cut up before the officers were able to stop the fight with a generous use of belaying pins.

DETROIT TIGERS TIE THE SERIES

DEFEAT PIRATES BY MARGIN OF ONE RUN

Three All Now Standing of World's Championship Games.

(Times Leased Wire.)
Detroit, Oct. 14.—The Detroit Tigers and the Pittsburgh Pirates are now coming down the home stretch in the final of the most sensational world's baseball championship race in the history of the national game. By Detroit 4, the Tigers and Buccaneers are now running neck and neck, each team having won three games.

The deciding game will be played in Detroit on Saturday evening.

Big George Mullin was in the box for Detroit. After the Wright brothers' exhibition to which the spectators were treated by the blonde pitcher in the initial session, when three Buccaneers crossed the plate, Mullin was practically invincible until the ninth inning, when the fourth and last Pirate glided safely over the pan.

Manager Clarke used three pitchers in an effort to stem the tide of defeat, but the thirsty and self-confident Tigers were not to be denied.

The line-up for to-day's game follows:

Pittsburgh—Byrne, 2b.; Leach, c.f.; Clarke, l.f.; Walker, a.s.; Miller, 2b.; Abstein, 1b.; Wilson, r.f.; Gibson, c.; Willis, p.

ACCIDENT TO A LOGGING TRAIN

Engine of Jordan River Lumber Company Badly Wrecked.

As the result of a somewhat serious accident experienced by the Jordan River Lumber Company in its operations on the West Coast of the Island, the plant has been temporarily shut down and a considerable number of men thrown out of employment.

On Tuesday last, while an engine drawing a train of cars laden with logs was coming down one of the steep inclines, the brakes failed to hold and the train got beyond control. There are a series of emergency switchbacks on the line intended to avert accident when trains get beyond control, and the engine and cars took one of these switchbacks. Owing to the fact, however, that one of the rails gave way with the impact, the engine was thrown over the embankment, which at this point is quite steep, and it was completely wrecked in its fall. The engineer and fireman jumped and escaped entirely uninjured. A new engine was at once ordered from the East by the company, but it will take considerable time for the order to be filled, and in the interim it has been found necessary to suspend operations in part of the camp.

WALL BUILT LONG AGO BY MOUND BUILDERS

Interesting Discovery Made by Toronto Professor in Manitoba.

Prof. Henry Montgomery, of the Toronto university, has returned to his home from an exploring trip in the western provinces. While away his work included a continuation of his explorations of the prairie mounds and other earthworks in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, in which work he has been engaged for many years. During his recent investigations Professor Montgomery succeeded in finding a number of prehistoric objects of handiwork previously unknown to scientists, and he considers that he has secured new and important evidence regarding the manner of the building of the ancient mounds, a problem which has long been puzzling the American anthropologists. One of these mounds in Manitoba was so large and interesting that he and four assistants were 11 days occupied in its thorough excavation. In another locality he examined an artificial prehistoric wall of earth and stones, this wall being six feet high, fifteen feet thick and half a mile long.

Prof. Montgomery attended the meetings of the British association in Winnipeg. The collections of skulls and other specimens made during his trip are for the new museum of the Ontario provincial university, of which Dr. Montgomery is the curator.

Britain holds the honor of having first formed societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals, and of having first legislated for punishment to offenders.

STEAMSHIP LINE ITALY TO CANADA

Flag From Citizens of Tortona Presented to First Vessel.

An interesting ceremony took place in the Italian consulate, Newcastle, recently, when Mrs. V. A. Montaldi, wife of the Italian consul in Newcastle, presented to Messrs. Cairns, Noble & Co., Ltd., the owners of the steamship Tortona, an Italian flag, on behalf of the citizens of Tortona, after which the vessel was named. The Tortona, which was recently launched by Messrs. Wigham, Richardson, Swan & Hunter at Wallsend, will be the first passenger vessel to carry emigrants from Italy to Canada. A large number of guests were invited to witness the ceremony, including the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoresse, Sir Thomas Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Hunter, Ald. Weldner, Major Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Noble, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Cairns, and various foreign consuls. The occasion coinciding with the 99th anniversary of the entry of the Italian troops in Rome—there were also present many members of the Italian colony in Newcastle.

Chevalier Montaldi explained that the Italian flag which his wife would present to Messrs. Cairns, Noble & Co. bore the arms of the city of Tortona, worked by the ladies of that city, and it had been sent with the heartiest wishes of the mayor of Tortona for the success of the pioneer vessel in the first direct passenger line between Italy and Canada. He trusted that the emigration of the strong and industrious new Latin race into the fertile plains of the Dominion of Canada would prove as successful to commerce, industry and agriculture, as the introduction of Italians to South and Central America and the United States. He was sure that the Italian flag floating side by side with the British and Canadian ensign would be protected by the same lucky and friendly star which had favored the enterprise of the Tortona's owners in the past, and that the new line would take its full share in the spread of civilization in the future.

Chevalier Montaldi then read a translation of a letter he had received that morning from the mayor of Tortona. It was as follows:

"As I wired you, yesterday I sent you the national flag bearing the coat of arms of Tortona, which this city offers to Messrs. Cairns, Noble & Co. of Newcastle-on-Tyne, as a token of gratitude for having named one of their trans-Atlantic steamers Tortona."

"The presentation of the flag will be made by you on the 20th September, a memorable date which has an echo the whole civilized world over, because it reminds one of one of the greatest events of the last century. In fact, whilst affirming the Italian flag as its irrevocable capital, the 'Theocratic' powers which were always an obstacle to the conquest of new rights of the people, anxiously hoping for a glorious epoch of liberty and progress."

"No anniversary therefore, could be more auspicious than this one for a city of Italy, which desires to do homage in a foreign land to a firm which creates an element of worldly civilization, bringing the people closer together who must fraternize in their common duties."

"Kindly interpret these sentiments of the administration of the town of Tortona, and again paying my respects to Messrs. Cairns, Noble & Co."

The reading of the letter was greeted with applause.

Mrs. Montaldi then handed the flag over to the owners, and hoped that it would bring good fortune to the steamer.

Mr. W. J. Noble said he gratefully accepted this pleasing token of goodwill towards the new enterprise of the Cairns Line, especially when it came through the medium of such old friends as Chevalier Montaldi and Mrs. Montaldi. He hardly knew what to say on an occasion like that. Mr. Montaldi had already given him an idea in his speech, and the same sentiment had been re-echoed in the letter of the mayor of Tortona. was going to bring the Italian people and the Canadian people into closer friendship. There was no business in the world that tended more to cement the nations of the world together than the shipping trade. PERSONALITIES AT THE PRESS CONFERENCE

By Dr. J. A. Macdonald, Editor of the Toronto Globe, in the Canadian Magazine.

It is easy to forget the speeches; the historic scenes fade away; but at least a dozen men stand out distinct and unforgettable in the crowded programme of the First Imperial Press Conference. Some were scarred veterans, old hands at home or overseas. Some were lusty new recruits who wield their unproved powers in such irregular and unexpected fashion that friends are made anxious and foes afraid. But those who held our keenest thoughts were the men marked with the dust and sweat of the day's conflict.

Nowhere but in London could there be found so many men of such distinction in statescraft and letters and empire-building. Never before were so many of them brought together as with one accord. That a Press conference provided the platform was itself significant. Some of them gave of the best of their thought, and even though it was for only an hour, it passed from beyond the sea something of that subtle power which betrays the presence of Personality. It was the presence of Personality that made the Imperial Press Conference vital, memorable, unique.

Lord Rosebery was the first. On the evening of the fifth of June, a speech of his was the first of the delegates from the Greater Britain. That was a great occasion. None but the Empire's greatest orator of Imperialism could match with fitting words the sentiment of the hour. Rosebery did it. But the eloquence of his speech was not in its carefully chosen words or in the regulated cadences of its tone or in the artless emphasis of pose or gesture which only seemed to be born of sudden impulse. By training as an orator, he has the orator's moods. He takes the orator's risks. He achieves the orator's triumphs. He wins the orator's rewards. All these were his when he spoke his "Welcome Home!" to the Empire editors. The words are worth repeating. For they gave the key-note to much of what was best in all of the conference that followed.

"Welcome home! Welcome home to the home of your language, of your liberties, and of your race. Welcome home to the source of your parliaments, of your free institutions, and of this immortal Empire. Welcome home to the supreme head of all these dominions, your Sovereign and mine, who is not merely the King of Great Britain but the King of Worlds. Welcome home to this well as to anything besides that we in all brotherhood and affection can offer you, Welcome home!"

In that magnificent peroration Lord Rosebery struck his own true note. Sentiment and voice and eye and gesture, the pose of his body and the passion of his soul, all combined with the emotion of his heart to make the high-water mark of us touched the high-water mark of postprandial eloquence.

Not that in my opinion the whole speech was of Rosebery's best. It was not. I heard him in Edinburgh twenty years ago when he let himself go in all the rush and abandon of untrammelled thought and speech. On that occasion he rose higher and sustained the height with more imperious wing. Again in Edinburgh when the freedom of the city was given to his fellow Scot, Prime Minister Campbell-Bannerman, he broke out suddenly, in response to the irrepressible call of the crowd, into a panegyric and protestation of loyalty, to his leader that for sheer power of eloquence eclipsed anything in his Press Conference speech. It may have been his native health, but it made the difference. It may be that the intervening years with their empty chaff where grain should have been have not enriched the deep sources of true oratory and so only for a moment did the fires blaze with the light and heat of other days. Or it may be the fault was mine. For certainly the note of Rosebery's speech echoed and re-echoed through all that followed.

The fact is that note was struck so often by unskilled and unsteady voices that it almost became an old song. Every time a speaker ran short of ideas but not of sounds he fell back on Rosebery's "Welcome Home!" Rosebery's personality gave power to its first utterance, lent on the lips of lesser men it dwindled and was lost in hollow-sounding words.

Mr. Asquith had scarcely time to dust the budget out of his brain, and it took all his wits to keep his feet free from the snares set for him at every turn by the sleepless Suffragettes. He is not greatly different from what one might have imagined him to be. His mind is keen, well-stored and well-trained. He has nothing at all of Rosebery's rare intuition and surging emotion, but he has what Rosebery lacks, the power to achieve. He may not see visions or dream dreams. His policies and plans are fashioned on the anvil of fact with the hammer of logic. His enthusiasm is intellectual rather than emotional. He wastes no words. There is in him, as in at least two of his colleagues in the government, something of the fire of the new Imperialism caught from Rosebery's own torch. With Asquith as Prime Minister and Lloyd-George as Chancellor, even the budget is bound to go through, kept on sound and logical lines by the precision of the one and propelled to its high issues by the glowing ardour of the other.

Mr. Balfour is a winsome personality. He may not be a great leader. He seems to lack the definiteness of opinion and the decision of character required in leadership. Finesse may be with him a dangerous malady. If ever he comes to the Premiership again he will not have many inconvenient speeches to explain away. He is a master of that style of speech which seems to be unreserved and exact, but which under other lights can be otherwise read. He showed this art at the Conference. He was chairman on the day devoted to the Press and the Army. Lord Roberts was the hero-speaker. Conspicuous was in the air. For aught Mr. Balfour said the delegates were warranted in reckoning him as a supporter of the conscription resolution. But when the moment came and the Conference called "Withdraw," he suggested that the resolution be not put to vote. I learned afterwards that he was opposed to its introduction. His speech at the Constitutional Club luncheon was equally asleep in spirit and form. Once it awoke within sight of the Tariff Reform, not near enough to compromise himself, but just enough to give his protectionist followers something to cheer for. That habit may have its advantages but it may be fatal to leadership.

In some respects Sir Edward Grey commanded the admiration of the Conference almost more than any other speaker. He has the unmistakable aristocratic air, dignified, setpotted, restrained, and the background of his political thinking is colored with the Rosebery Imperialism. That must be remembered when listening to him or when reading his speeches at times of crisis. Grey represents one wing of the Liberal cabinet, Lloyd-George the other. Both agree in the fundamental ideals and purposes, and by the coordinated, informed and progressive action of both wings British Liberalism is being carried forward with a programme of service to the nation and to humanity such as few governments ever attempted. Of course, efforts are being made to split the government in two. The Imperialistic Tories are striving to capture Sir Edward Grey as they would capture the Liberalism of the Empire. At the other extreme the Socialists pretend to claim Mr. Lloyd-George. Thoughtful onlookers very rightly regard these two distinguished British statesmen as standing at the two poles of one full-orbed truth, and by their purposeful cooperation on the one hand and the more urgent causes of social reform on the other shall together be evenly, adequately, effectively served.

Two very interesting groups of men were in close touch with the conference. One had to do with the navy, the other with the army. Mr. Reginald McKenna, First Lord of the Admiralty, is a young man to whom have been committed enormous responsibilities at a very critical time. He presided over the discussion of the press and the navy. He is thoughtful, steady, and free from jingoism, a good man to be at the helm these days. His first Sea Lord, Sir John Fisher, was our pilot the day we sailed through the "long sea lanes" of the fleet at Spithead. Sir John is the most domestic of men, and out of storms of controversy he is emerging with credit. The chief critic of the Admiralty Lord Charles Bessborough is much more interesting to newspapermen, because he is so delightfully outspoken. It was the Right Honorable Alfred Lyttelton who told us, that in discussing the navy men were exposed to rhetoric on one side and to indirection on the other. He may have had Lord Charles in mind as illustrating both dangers. "Indiscretion," he said, "is the more amusing to an audience, especially to an audience of the press, but it has a way of receding formidably on the head of its author." No man talked with more agreeable indiscretion than Lord Charles Bessborough.

Mr. R. B. Haldane, Secretary of State for War, became known to many of the delegates for, like Mr. McKenna, he manifested a genuine personal interest in the conference. He is a solid man. He masters the details of the problem he has in hand as of old he mastered his briefs for Canada before the Privy Council. He talked in private with evident pride of his Canadian briefs and recalled the day's of Sir Oliver Mowat's Provincial rights appeal case. He has himself something of Mowat's four-square stability.

Lord Roberts was the war-hero of the conference and although many think his "conscription" policy the work of an old man in a hurry—using Lord Randolph Churchill's description of Gladstone's Home Rule bill—he gripped us not only by his speeches on special occasions but also by the cordiality with which he greeted individual delegates on all private occasions.

At Aldershot the most interesting personality was Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien who was in charge, and who asked after the Canadians who served under him in South Africa with the affectionate interest of a personal friend. One did not wonder at the enthusiasm of the Canadian soldiers for Smith-Dorrien.

Two of the younger men in the front rank of the House of Commons were interesting to the delegates, both for their own sakes and for the sake of the names they bear. One was Austen Chamberlain the other Winston Churchill. Personally Mr. Chamberlain is the more agreeable, but Mr. Churchill is the more interesting. Neither in his speeches nor in his conversations did Mr. Chamberlain betray any distinctive quality that would compel attention. He apparently casual but really premeditated mention of "my father" drew from the delegates the instant applause which showed that the old-time Colonial Secretary is not forgotten. It is said that in the later years of his career in the House of Commons there were two men of whom Joseph Chamberlain was genuinely afraid—Mr. Lloyd-George and Mr. Churchill. That saying is probably true. Mr. Lloyd-George is able, alert, keen, nimble, fired with immense moral conviction, and is a most dangerous antagonist either on the platform or in parliament as several of the Lords have discovered during the budget controversy. Mr. Joseph Chamberlain might well fear him.

Mr. Winston Churchill is of entirely different style. He is clever, amazingly clever, beyond all question, but he is exasperatingly imperturbable. They call him a "cad," and on all occasions feature his "lone hand" irresponsibility. His conference speech was not specially distinguished, except for those who understood. He really wanted to break out on the "war-scare" Imperialism which he scented. That he held himself in check should be counted to his credit. Even his friends say they are never sure of him. I heard, his speech in Edinburgh in which he scored Lord Lansdowne over the "mincing" and "winning" business, but it really was not half as bad as headlines of the reports and subsequent references made it appear. There are those who think Churchill will yet be a divisive influence in the Liberal party as Joseph Chamberlain has been in the Conservative party. Certain it is that he is not likely yet awhile to sink into obscurity.

Two Cabinet Ministers who are literary men rather than politicians greatly attracted the delegates. Of all those who honored the conference with serious and thoughtful addresses Lord Morley was for me the most interesting. He is not an orator as orators go. He speaks haltingly and with a certain touch of remoteness in his tone. There is nothing at all of unreserve or abandon. But, despite all this, John Morley is one of the grand men of the Empire. He has aged since he was in Toronto a few years ago. The lines have deepened in his face, dug partly by personal sorrow and partly by that awful burden of India. A less wise man or a less humane man or a less courageous man, and who can feel what unprecedented horrors India had witnessed during Morley's years of office. His sagacity, integrity and intelligent statesmanship marking the lines of progress and creating the atmosphere of life. Have done more for British rule in India than ever can be told except to those who can read the meaning of those furrows of care and that far-away look. Personal sorrow added a pang to his public burden. And through these years he has gone so steadily, so heroically, so bravely even though he saw no high purpose culminating either for the individual or for the race "behind the veil." As he spoke to us, with a note of pleading in his voice, calling us and all our fellow-journalists to stand against the rebarbarisation of the nations, I could not but regret that men speak of him as one whose intellectual vision is not touched with religious faith. The story comes back, told by Morley's former junior—James G. Thompson, T. P. O'Connor, that in speaking of his new house at Wimbledon, with its great library and beautiful English rural scenery, Morley said: "It lacks a mountain." "Why a mountain?" "Because," said Morley, and there was infinite pathos in his saying of it—"because beyond the mountain there is hope."

Augustine Birrell is removed from John Morley as far as the ear is from the west. They are one in their political ideals, but in all things that have to do with temperament and style and personal impression they belong to widely different types. Birrell was distinguished before he entered parliament. Like Morley, his essays gave him rank as a man of letters before he was called to the vexing task of education and the still more vexing problem of Ireland. Beyond question he is justifying some real headway in being made in Ireland. More has been done within the past three or four years, so the best of the Irish party say, than in as many decades in the past to get Ireland out of the rut of discontent and distress. The man who settled the university question did more than any appears in helping out the settlement of the Irish question. But for the Press delegates Birrell was a most refreshing breeze. Members of the House of Commons are notoriously dull on the platform. The Lords are even duller. They are stifled and restrained, and need constantly the whip and spur of the campaign "heckler." But Birrell learned the platform style before he entered politics. His literary sense is excellent, fresh and virile, and when he lets go either in parliament or at a public meeting, it is as the rushing of a mighty wind. "Literature and Journalism" was the topic on his day at the conference. Morley was in the chair, and his address was a masterpiece. Winston Churchill followed with a speech that called journalists' attention to high service as trustees of the English language and of British civilization, using, not bullets, but words, and under obligation to use wise words, true words, words of honor and justice and peace. Then came Viscount Milner. Now, Milner is an Imperialist, both by nature and by practice, and his sympathies do not run parallel with those of Morley or Churchill or any of the Liberals. His Imperialism is to be sure, dashed with disturbing Radicalism, which separates him from the old reactionary Tory type as distinctly as from Lloyd-George and John Burns. But Milner is really an Imperialist, and when he followed Churchill a sudden change occurred. What a difference! Churchill is reckless, studiously reckless, while Milner is almost lamely backing in political sagacity. Plainly he did not relish Morley's warning against rebarbarising the nations with battleships and yellow journals. He called it "dreadful nonsense," and, expressing the opinion that "the life is out of the discussion of 'Literature and Journalism,'" he declined to speak more than a few words in order that the delegates might get back to the discussion of Imperial defence which had already absorbed almost the entire time of the conference.

But Milner reckoned without his hosts. Even loyalty and defence are not all the things newspaper men care about. He reckoned also without Augustine Birrell, who followed him on the programme. Birrell swept through that conference hall of the Foreign office inspiring as a breeze from the hills of Killarney, and all the war-microphones were blown out the windows. His speech in giving the toast at the luncheon by the literary and journalistic members of the House of Commons as a marvel of cleverness and brilliancy was spoken with that verve and vigor which redeems after-dinner speaking from being burdensome to the listeners. Mr. Birrell is an interesting personality.

Mention of Milner recalls the names of two other Pro-consuls, Lord Curzon and Lord Cromer. All three have been in the high places of the Empire. To them was given the dangerous power plant of the autocrat. The autocrat in South Africa, in Egypt, or in India runs great risks. He makes or he breaks. In South Africa Lord Milner, with the conscience of a Puritan, but without the sympathetic insight of a leader of men played the autocrat and lost. And when he saw all the thought he had turned upside down by the present government in giving a free parliamentary constitution to the now united colonies of South Africa, Milner could not rejoice. He was slow of heart to believe all that the statesmen of South Africa, Boer and British alike, had spoken. But despite this incapacity to understand or to believe, honor and admiration are due to Viscount Milner for his sterling qualities, his incorruptibility in the midst of South African millionaire exploiters, and his earnest though sometimes mistaken efforts to make the British Empire a tower of strength and a moral force.

Lord Cromer turned to the delegates a strong, strident face. He, too, has suffered, but not in vain, for the Empire's sake in India and Egypt. Experience has taught him that political systems and political ideals suited to one race and one zone may not be suited to a different race in a different zone. He began an English Liberal with notions of democracy as the ultimate and universal form of civil government, spent facts in India and even sterner facts in Egypt have taught him that there is no divine right of democracy, that governmental forces should be outward expressions of the inward life of a people, and that between the life-instances of the Anglo-Saxon and those of the Oriental distinctions between self-government and autocracy.

More autocratic than Lord Milner, more self-assertive than Lord Cromer, the man who rubbed many of the delegates the wrong way was Lord Curzon. A man of ability, of very decided ability, he certainly is. No weakling can be hated as Curzon is hated—he is not too strong a term, both in India and in England. No small man rises to the Chancellorship of the Exchequer. And yet he had bare his limitations the very first day we met him. It was at the luncheon given at the Constitutional Club, the Conservative headquarters. One of the toasts was to "British Pro-consuls." By one of Fate's strange coincidences, the committee chose the one press delegate who ought not to have been selected to propose that toast. In view of the fact that Lord Curzon replied, "That man was Maitland Park of the Cape Times who, when in journalism in Allahabad, came into sharp antagonism years ago with Curzon over some matters of Indian interest. There was not room for both in India. Now they meet in London, the man who had to leave proposing a toast to which the former Viscount makes response. Mr. Park did the part in excellent taste, making amusing reference to the personal clash and the unexpected meeting under exceptional circumstances after so many years. But Lord Curzon in his reply 'showed his teeth.' He had not forgotten or forgiven. His shaft was strongly shot but it was dipped in venom. That personal sidelight explained in some measure why he got into trouble in India and why he is not finding politics in Britain a bed of roses or a roadway to fame.

But this would fail to tell of all who for their names' sake or their work's sake were at one time or another observed of all the delegates. The Earl of Crewe held our special interest because of his official relations with overseas affairs, and he won our respect and confidence by his wise, dignified and conciliatory bearing on all occasions. Lord Escher was a perfect chairman, and as a guide, philosopher, and friend none could equal T. P. O'Connor, who never failed us. And many others there were.

Greatest of all among the personalities that came within the range of the conference was the King himself. There he stood, with the gracious and beautiful Queen at his side, under the trees at Marlborough House, and as friends greet friends the King and Queen and the Prince and Princess of Wales greeted with unusual warmth and cordiality the press representatives from the outer Empire. Its simplicity was as impressive as was the stateliness of the pageant on the east lawn at Windsor Castle. At the heart of the Empire is a true personality, and by his personal touch His Imperial Majesty found heart of loyalty in the most democratic man amongst us. We found him, as Lord Rosebery said, "not merely the King of Great Britain, but the King of Hearts."

CIVIC GOVERNMENT.

Calgary, Oct. 14.—After studying the situation carefully I think the Des Moines plan of city government, providing a board of four commissioners and a mayor, each in charge of a civil department, is now the best system for Calgary. Says Mayor Jameson. "Under this plan, if a commissioner be not doing what the people think right, they have the power to remove him. We may see such a civic government in a year, but we should work to secure it as soon as possible."

ALL CRIPPLED UP FROM KIDNEY TROUBLE

Cured by Gin Pills.

Mrs. John Pettigrew, of Central Economy, N. S., was practically helpless from Kidney Trouble. She could not stoop, and her limbs ached so that it was torture for her to be up and about her house. As Mrs. Pettigrew put it, "I was all crippled up. I saw Gin Pills advertised and sent for some, and after taking only two boxes am a different woman. Gin Pills are the only thing that helped me, and I cannot say too much for them."

If you have that dreadful pain in the back—if you are tortured with Rheumatism or Sciatica—if you have trouble with your bladder and especially in passing water—if your liver is torpid and you are Bilious—get Gin Pills at once. Perhaps you do not care to buy a remedy which is unknown, personally, to you. Very well. Will you use Gin Pills if we send you a free sample? Simply write the National Drug & Chemical Co. (Dept. V. Mind Your Own Business And Put Others in Mind of It!

It's a Long Time Since the Days of Cariboo

Time was when the Victoria merchant thought he didn't need advertising. He knew all the miners who came down from Cariboo in the winter, for he played black-jack with them in a back room of the hotel. Later, conditions became stereotyped, and he expressed his lack of enterprise by the reflection that "everybody knows me anyway."

Modern Shoppers 'Know Not Joseph'

Victoria has increased in population from 22,000 to 40,000 in the past four or five years. What does that mean? Simply that apart from the natural changes, a new city has sprung up with all the needs that inevitably follow. Thousands of new kitchens to stock, new tables to spread, new homes to furnish, new people to clothe and feed and house. Count the new faces on the streets. Where do these people go to shop? The answer is obvious. To the stores and shops which seek their trade. The stores which advertise are naturally the ones which catch the trade, for while there may be some poor shops that do advertise, there are very few good shops that don't.

Methods of 'Fifty-Eight Gone Like the Dodo

Some of the best firms in the city—and the most enterprising—were doing business in '58. But they are not using '58 methods now. They are modern and up-to-date. They are holding their own with the new banks, new clothing stores, new butchers, new druggists, etc., that have invaded the local field. They enjoy the advantage of long standing in the community and of the prestige which comes from years of honorable dealing.

Advertising Never Takes a Day Off

But prestige is a fickle thing—hard to gain and hard to maintain. The merchant or manufacturer must continue his leadership as an advertiser, or he will surely drop from the public mind. It has been demonstrated time and again that few proprietary articles can be so firmly established as to need no longer the aid of advertising. Some manufacturers have assumed that they were so placed that their goods would be their own advertisement, only to discover that prestige diminished the moment the effort to sustain it ceased.

There Are No Frontiers In Advertising

Those frontiers of trade territory which personal salesmanship has always had to acknowledge are absolutely banished by the advertising methods. An advertisement goes everywhere. A stove was recently sold by mail to a man on an island in the Pacific who rowed it laboriously from his nearest station and post office to his island home.

No Day Without An Advertisement

Advertising, like liniment, doesn't do much good when applied with a feather. It needs to be rubbed in for results. Apply it through the right mediums to the right people at the right time, and keep on rubbing it in until returns begin to come. Then, still keep on a rubbing.

If You Don't Advertise Your Business The Sheriff May

A shipbuilder who would construct a staunch vessel all ready to take to the water, and then forbear to launch it on the plea that he couldn't afford to buy the tallow wherewith to grease the ways, would speedily be the central figure of a lunacy commission's inquiry and the occupant of a padded cell. Yet why should such a man be subject to restraint when merchants run at large who have laboriously put together their little barques for adventure upon the seas of business, and left them high and dry upon the margin of the flood that others successfully navigate, because forsooth, they "cannot afford to advertise?" Every business man can afford to advertise. He who thinks he cannot is the victim of a costly hallucination which a first-class daily newspaper like the Times can infallibly help him to dispel.

FALL ASSIZES OPEN

AT VANCOUVER

Japanese Stabbing Case Result of Quarrel Over Card Game.

Vancouver, Oct. 13.—The Fall Assizes opened here yesterday morning with Mr. Justice Irving on the Bench. Deputy Attorney-General Maclean, who appeared for the Crown, announced that two of the men on the list, Stanton and Overton, committed for false pretences had changed their pleas and elected for jury trial. He asked also for change of venue in the cases of Yoshikawa and Egan, both charged with murder, as these alleged offences were committed within the jurisdiction of the district of Atlin, but it was more convenient to hold the trials here. In the case of H. Yoshikawa, who was unable to provide counsel, the Crown had consented to engage Mr. Whiteside, who was willing to act for him.

Jap Found Guilty.

The Grand Jury lost little time in finding a true bill against Masajaro Ogata, a Japanese charged with wounding with intent to kill his countryman, Tomiko Sato, at the Klidala cannery, Rivers Inlet, in June. They were playing the fascinating Japanese game Na Na Tan, and it so happened that Ogata was on the losing side and Sato on the winning. Thereupon Ogata tore up one of the cards in his hand and threw the rest down on the floor. Hot words ensued and Ogata raised a bench and struck Sato on the arm. Sato, enraged, picked up a chair and threw it at Ogata, knocking him down. He then disappeared below for the night and asked a friend if he might sleep with him. They locked the door and heard Ogata fuming on the outside and vowing vengeance. Next morning, Sato went away fishing and did not see Ogata again till he met him at dinner in Kobayashi's boarding-house on July 3rd. Ogata promptly seized him by the shoulders and said, "You remember that trouble we had before," and without waiting for an answer he began to carve up Sato with a butcher knife. He slashed him down the back and Sato tried to run away but slipped and fell. Ogata, who was on both arms, by this time, another Japanese, hearing the row, came to the room and pushed Ogata away with a bench. The rest of the boarders poured in and held him while they raised Sato. Afterwards they placed him on a door and carried him to the steamer Chinook, which took him to the hospital at Rivers Inlet, where he lay till healed of his wounds.

The jury after a short absence found Ogata guilty of wounding with intent to do grievous bodily harm.

DIES FROM HEART FAILURE.

New Westminster, Oct. 13.—The death occurred Monday night of James Wesley Storey, of the firm of Hume & Storey, of Ladner, aged 44 years, at Crescent Island. Death was due to heart failure. The deceased was a native of Ontario. He leaves a wife and a brother residing at Ladner.

GOES UP IN SMOKE.

Kaslo, Oct. 13.—One of Kaslo's old boom day buildings went up in smoke when the "Leland" was destroyed by fire. The building was occupied as a rooming house by Mr. and Mrs. Erickson, who with several boarders were downstairs at the time, totally unaware of the destruction going on over their heads. How the fire started is a mystery, as it is said the stove was unlighted that day upstairs but the theory is advanced that some one started a fire in the heater, leaving the draught open on retiring.

The building was owned by Mrs. M. McAndrew and insured for $1,000. Every room was furnished, on which no insurance was carried and the loss on fixtures is very heavy. The Leland was one of the early day relics.

Vancouver, Oct. 13.—The management of the British Columbia Electric Railway company has given the contract for the erection of the substation along its extension from New Westminster to Chilliwack to T. R. Nickson & Co., the award covering the entire series of five structures.

The substations are to be located along the line at points twelve miles apart. The first is at Cloverdale, and work on this building has already been started by the contractors. The other locations are at Slayburn, near Abbotsford, near Huntingdon and in the vicinity of Chilliwack.

The buildings will be of concrete construction and similar in type and equipment to the plants now installed along the line of the New Westminster and Louisa Island interurban lines. Equipped with machinery, the five substations represent an investment of over $250,000.

FATALLY INJURED IN RUNAWAY ACCIDENT

Gardener Dies as Result of Being Thrown Out of Rig.

Summerland, Oct. 12.—A sad accident occurred at Naramara whereby Duncan E. Cameron, an employee of the Summerland Trust company, lost his life. Cameron was driving in company with James Hayward, when the horse took fright and bolted, throwing both men from the rig. Hayward was thrown on a stump and partly impaled, the wood entering his abdomen. Hemorrhage started and the doctor pronounced it a hopeless case from the outset. Hayward was somewhat bruised but not seriously. The deceased was a gardener by profession and leaves a wife and family.

EXERCISES AT HIGH SCHOOL

PLEASING FUNCTION

SET FOR TO-MORROW

Need of More Accommodation

—Cadet Corps in Need of Uniforms.

Commencement exercises will be held at the Victoria High school to-morrow afternoon, commencing at 2.30 o'clock, and it is anticipated that the function will be more than usually interesting and important this year. Invitations have been issued to several of the provincial ministers to be present, and an address from Hon. Dr. Young is looked forward to. The members of the board of school trustees will be present and also, no doubt, a large number of parents and friends of the pupils.

E. R. Paul, the city superintendent, will present some striking figures, showing the large increase in the attendance at the High school. It will be recalled that when the building was first erected it was predicted that it would be a difficult matter to fill it. Not only has this prediction been falsified by the results, but it is now clear that at an early date another and larger High school should have to be erected or the present one enlarged very materially.

There had been an increase in the total attendance at the High school for the past two years of 8 pupils. There are 29 pupils over and above those in attendance for the similar period last year, and by a coincidence the increase in 1908 over 1907 was exactly the same figure. Mr. Paul is of the opinion that it may be anticipated that the rate of increase in the years to come will be higher if anything than in the past.

As the situation is to-day, every room is crowded, and there is absolutely no accommodation for a further increase in the number of pupils. In this connection it will be recalled that Trustee McNeill some time ago introduced a motion calling for the city council to arrange to submit a by-law to be voted on at the time of the next municipal election providing for the raising of the sum of $150,000 for the purpose of erecting a new High school. The present situation in respect to lack of accommodation will assuredly direct attention anew to this scheme.

During the proceedings to-morrow the matter of equipping the cadet corps in connection with the High school with uniforms will be brought up. There are two fine corps without uniforms, and, in the opinion of Mr. Paul, it is a pity that arrangements have not been made to meet this situation. A great amount of the cost of the uniforms, find themselves unable to do so, and it is distinctly discouraging to the boys, who have attained a fine state of efficiency, to be neglected in the matter of full equipment. In Vancouver, it is pointed out, the matter of equipping for the cost of uniforms has been got over by the school trustees appropriating the required sum, and then arranging with the city council to pass the necessary by-law, in this way making the two bodies similarly responsible for the expenditure.

SPAIN AROUSED

BY EXECUTION

Later the rowdy element formed again in the vicinity of the embassy and tore up the lamp posts, trees and benches, and erected a barricade.

M. Lepine, prefect of police, soon arrived at the head of reinforcements and was received with a volley of shots from the crowd. He escaped from death or serious injury by a narrow margin.

The cavalry charged, using their sabres freely and stormed the barricade. The police arrested a dangerous Spanish anarchist, Emmanuel de la Torre, who admits having fired at M. Lepine.

Owing to the strict censorship at Madrid, nothing with reference to the effect of the execution of Ferrer has had in Madrid reached Paris to-day.

Troops Guard Embassy.

Paris, Oct. 14.—(Later).—Aroused and bitter over the execution of Prof. Francisco Ferrer at Barcelona yesterday, the French radicals are determined to goad the Spaniards into open revolution against the Spanish throne.

Mass meetings will be held in every section of France on Sunday.

The police are preparing to prevent violence, as it is expected that the leaders will incite the populace to further rioting.

President Fallieres passed the day at the Juvigny aviation meet under heavy guard. The dirigible balloon Espana, which has just been sold to Spain, was scheduled to make its initial manoeuvres this afternoon. The feeling is so high against the Spanish government, however, that it probably will be kept in the shed.

The Spanish embassy is surrounded by soldiers to prevent the radicals from attacking it.

A long petition was handed to the city council to-day asking that one of the city's streets be re-named in honor of Ferrer.

KNOCKED DOWN BY HORSE

Ottawa, Oct. 13.—Bruce Stuart, captain and rover of the Ottawa Stanley Cup hockey team, was badly cut as the result of being run down by a horse on Albert street, near the corner of Metcalf, last evening. Stuart was crossing the street, when a horse dashed around the corner and knocked him down. Fortunately he was not run over. Stuart was picked up unconscious with bad cuts in his head and face. He was carried into a nearby house and attended to by Dr. Giblin. Several stitches being required to close the wound. Stuart will be laid up for a week or two, as he was painfully shaken up in the fall. He had just returned from Montreal, where he was on hockey business.

INJURED BY BOMB

Woodstock, Ont., Oct. 14.—While Aid. James Buchanan, of Ingersoll, was lighting a cigar, in the bar of the Kerwin hotel there was an explosion of a small bomb, thrown by some unknown person, and his thumb and two fingers were blown off and his right eye badly injured. No clue to the miscreant can be obtained.
